Voting Machines Promised Atlanta by LeCraw

Devices To Be Ready by 1944, Nominee Says

Reveals He Will Ask Transfer to Inactive Guard Unit.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.
Voting machines to avoid irregularities, eliminate confusion, simplify and speed up tabulation in future Atlanta primaries and elections was promised Atlantans by Mayor-Nominee Roy LeCraw yesterday.

By the time 1944 primary and elections roll around the city will have a full complement of voting machines ready to receive the verdict of Atlanta voters and to assist the newly elected city Democratic executive committee in its primary tasks, he asserted.

"It shall be my purpose to see that the machines are purchased and are ready for the next municipal primary," LeCraw said.

On the basis of last Wednesday's primary, in which voting was done in 38 precincts, 38 voting machines will be necessary. Each machine costs about $1,000.

Taking cognizance of the fact that election managers and clerks were forced to hold the primary from 7 a. m. until 7 p. m.—12 full hours—last Wednesday and then begin counting ballots for 28 contested races in which 65 candidates were qualified, LeCraw asserted that they were worked "beyond the point where any human can be expected to function with 100 per cent efficiency."

Lack of Funds.
"I shall co-operate with the executive committee in providing the machines, which have been sought by its members for the past several years, but which have not been available because of lack of sufficient funds," he said.

"It seems to me that the city government should assist the committee in its efforts to hold clean elections and to solve the difficult problems facing the committee. That is what I intend to ask council to do, and I am confident they will co-operate."

The Mayor-nominee also announced he has decided against going to a military camp this fall, but instead will devote his entire time to a painstaking study of local municipal problems. LeCraw will ask for a transfer to an inactive Guard unit. Governor Rivers has said he would grant it.

"This decision has been reached with a degree of reluctance, because I like military work," he added. "However, I have been nominated as Mayor of the south's greatest city, and I feel I owe it to those who showed confidence in me to acquaint myself fully with the problems facing the city and to evolve a plan for their solution."

"I, therefore, have decided to

Bond Recount Would Be Legal, Assistant City Attorney Believes

Allen's Committee Will Meet This Morning To Make Plans.

Assistant City Attorney J. Charles Murphy declared last night, in answer to a direct question, that he knew of nothing in the election laws to prevent city council and the bond election managers from opening the boxes and recounting the returns of Wednesday's bond election.

Murphy explained that the mayor, council and the managers, acting jointly, are empowered to "do whatever is necessary to determine the real count of the bond vote and to publish it."

He then pointed out that in the opinion of the group this requires the opening of the boxes and a recount, he saw nothing in the law to prevent them from doing it.

City council will meet in special session at 3 o'clock this afternoon to consider a petition for a recount of the bond issue ballots.

The $4,000,000 bond issue failed last Wednesday by less than 200 votes to receive a constitutional majority, although they were overwhelmingly approved by the voters who went to the polls.

Meanwhile, J. P. Allen, chairman of the city bond campaign committee, and his committee this morning will meet to map their plans for getting the bond ballots recounted.

Mayor Hartfordfield in calling the special session urged all bond election managers who served last Wednesday to attend the session.

The recount petition sets out the bond ballot failed to carry specific instructions how to mark the ballot and that as a result many persons checked their ballot instead of striking out the portion they did not wish to vote for; that there was a general misconception and confusion on how to mark the ballot and that a recount would establish that every one of the issues were approved and met all constitutional requirements.

The mayor's call provides that council "may do anything it desires about the petition."

Schools Open No Secrecy In Atlanta Area In Selection, This Morning Etheridge Told

80,000 Pupils Will Return to Classes at 8:30 O'Clock.

Readin', 'ritin', and 'rithmetic days return again today for more than 80,000 youngsters who will report to 205 elementary, junior high, and high schools in the Atlanta metropolitan area at 8:30 this morning.

Advance registration for classes was held last Friday, but officials in both city and county schools expect additional thousands not yet registered to report this morning.

In the Fulton county system, a substantial increase in enrollment is expected this year, according to Superintendent Jere Wells. Last year's total enrollment was 25,000 pupils.

Approximately 50,000 pupils were registered in the Atlanta schools last year, with no appreciable increase in sight for this year. Registration at night school, and other special schools operated by the city, however, is expected to push the total in the Atlanta system to more than 60,000 by the end of September.

Increases are expected, however, in both the Decatur and DeKalb county systems. Nearly 1,500 new pupils are expected to enroll in Decatur, bringing the total to 3,250, while a slight increase in DeKalb is expected to bring total enrollment there to nearly 9,700 students.

Boy Falls 60 Feet, Only Slightly Hurt

James Hurst, a University of Georgia freshman and football prospect, fell at least 60 feet over the Minnehaha Falls at the upper end of Lake Rabun yesterday and lived to tell about it.

In fact, Hurst, who was rushed to the home of a private physician at Clarksville, suffered only a sprained ankle, two broken fingers and cuts and bruises.

Dr. D. H. Garrison, of Clarksville, who treated the youth, said he was told the youth was along the edge of the falls in his bare feet when he slipped and fell.

Talmadge, Nix, Roberts Pledge No New Taxes

Athens Candidate's Backers To Send Motorcades Through State.

With only two days remaining before Georgia's 400,000 voters go to the polls to select a new governor, the three candidates for the office yesterday made a last-minute stab for support by promising "no additional taxes" and two of them—Columbus Roberts and Eugene Talmadge—placed themselves definitely against the much discussed sales tax.

Abit Nix, while not mentioning the sales tax issue in his brief statement, did say he was opposed to any additional taxes and added: "Properly and economically administered, the present income is sufficient to render all of the services demanded by the people and will be sufficient to keep Georgia abreast of the nation in progressive measures."

Talmadge said "every lick that I got at a tax bill in my life I cut it," and added "there is no need to raise more money from a sales tax or any other kind of a tax and if I am elected Governor there will be no sales tax."

Need No Increase.
Roberts said: "We can carry on the needed state services without any additional taxes and I am not advocating a retail sales tax."

Roberts will speak at 11 o'clock this morning at Cairo and at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Bainbridge. Tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock he plans to speak from the courthouse steps at Tifton and will close his speaking campaign at 3 o'clock from the courthouse steps at Perry.

Nix supporters both today and tomorrow will send motorcades throughout large sections of the state. Today the motorcade will leave Atlanta and visit McDonough, Jackson, Milledgeville, Macon, Forsyth, Griffin and Jonesboro. Tomorrow the Atlanta group will go to Fairburn, Newnan, LaGrange, West Point, Chipley, Franklin, Carrollton and Douglasville.

Motorcades will also operate out of Waycross, Valdosta and Macon on both days. Nix will speak at Lawrenceville at 10 o'clock this morning and will deliver a radio address from Atlanta at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. He will again speak at 4:30 o'clock and at 9:30 o'clock.

Herman Talmadge, son of former Governor Talmadge, said his father considered his speaking

President Joins the Nation In Prayers for World Peace

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 8.—(P)—Observing a national day of prayer for world peace—as he had asked his fellow Americans of all creeds and denominations to do—President Roosevelt heard the recitation of St. James Episcopal church ask God today for "a peace which is the fruit of righteousness and justice."

With Mrs. Roosevelt, Crown Princess Martha and the Countess Ostgard of Nazi-conquered Norway, the President sat in the second pew of the dimly sunlit sanctuary and heard the Rev. Frank R. Wilson pray for peace at a time when "many of us feel that we are on the brink of the greatest catastrophe of all time."

New Dictator Seizes Carol's Vast Fortune

Exiled King and Mystery Woman Arrive in Switzerland.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 8.—(P)—Former King Carol's stock holdings, his credits and titles, with an estimated value of millions of dollars, were ordered sequestered today by General Ion Antonescu, Rumania's new military dictator.

Carol, who abdicated Friday in favor of his son, 18-year-old Crown Prince Michael after appointing Antonescu premier with dictatorial powers, arrived today in Lugano, Switzerland—the first halt in his exile.

The order to sequester the banished monarch's property was one of a batch of sensational decrees signed by the new pro-Axis "chief of state."

By his command, too, the populace of Rumania knelt today to

British Troops Arrive in Egypt Eager for 'Crack at Italians'

Thousands of Soldiers Make Journey Unmolested by Enemy; 'Ought To Be Easy To Bring Down Plane a Day,' Australian Pilot Says.

CAIRO, Sept. 8.—(P)—Britain reinforced her middle east fighting forces with thousands of troops landed on the sun-baked quays today from the biggest convoy ever to reach Egypt.

A long line of big transports splashed into the light green waters of the harbor during the day after an uneventful voyage from England in which they reported not a single Italian warship sighted.

The exact number of troops disembarking from ships was not disclosed but officials said there were "several thousand."

In addition to ground troops, there were many Australian airmen, hundreds of nurses from England and Scotland and several hundred reinforcements for the navy and Royal Air Force.

"We are glad to be here even though we hated to leave our families in England," said one soldier. "But we know our forces there can give Hitler more than he wants and we've come down here to clean up the Italian side of this war."

"We'll wind this thing up as soon as possible," commented an officer.

The soldiers, nurses, sailors and fliers were in excellent spirits and "raring to go."

"I'm anxious to get into a plane and take a crack at the Italians," one youthful Australian pilot said. "From what I've heard and judging from the RAF's successes, it ought to be easy to bring down at least one plane every day I go up."

Another said the entire voyage was without incident. "We got a big laugh one night when we heard a Berlin broadcast that our ship had been sunk off north Ireland."

"We are glad to see land again and are anxious to get into this war and do our bit," volunteered one pretty, blond Scottish nurse.

"They didn't need us in England because there are plenty of nurses there to take care of the wounded soldiers and we thought the would be needing us down here."

Germans Blast City Steadily In Mass Raids

Deaths Pass 400, Injured 1,400; Hundreds of Buildings Damaged.

By the United Press.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—(Monday)—Using the still-blazing ruins of last night's bombing fury as beacons, waves of German bombers smashed upon London today from all sides in a mass resumption of Adolf Hitler's "total war" against a city still digging its dead from ruins.

Bombs fell with a constantly swelling roar and flames leaped into the sky, licking at a heavy pall of smoke hanging over areas bombed relentlessly for 12 hours Saturday night and early today with a toll of dead and dying mounting into the hundreds.

Bombs Near Parliament.
(German bombers began sweeping over London in waves again an hour before dawn and loosed heavy explosives in the vicinity of the houses of parliament, the Associated Press reported.)

(Some raiders flew in much lower than bombers on any previous attacks.)

(A photographic plate in the pocket of Laurence Harris, photographer on the roof of the Associated Press building, was smashed by the concussion of a near-by blast.)

As the attack passed its eighth hour, heavy detonations were still heard in central London. The bombing seemed to have increased during the last hour.

The "all clear" signal finally came at 5:35 a. m. to end the night of horror, which the authoritative press association described as worse than Saturday night. The raid lasted for more than nine and a half hours, the longest of the war.

"Many hundreds" of buildings had been damaged, some wrecked, by hundreds of explosives and incendiary bombs plunging out of the pitch-dark sky lighted only by the reflection of spreading fires and searchlight beams.

European Embassy Hit.

The embassy of a European power was hit by a bomb. Many fires were started by the Nazi incendiaries, literally piling burning wreckage upon the still-smoking debris of the earlier attack.

With at least 400 dead and about 1,400 injured in the Saturday night assault and many others undoubtedly killed, London had a bare 15-hour respite from crashing bombs before Hitler's "all out" assault was resumed at 7:58 o'clock last night.

As the attack entered its sixth hour the air ministry warned of "worse horrors to come because we have not yet reached the top note of this crescendo of air attack."

There were grave warnings in

Boy Injures Back In Escape Attempt

An attempted "human fly" escape from the Fulton county juvenile detention home yesterday sent 15-year-old Horace Thomas McDaniel to Grady hospital with a fractured back after he had fallen three floors from the roof of the building to an asphalt driveway.

Physicians at Grady hospital listed his condition as "fair." He was arrested last Friday by city police on a charge of stealing butter from a Pryor street grocery store. He lives at 487 Central avenue, S. W., records show.

LIFE for the next twenty years will be vastly different. No matter what happens in the political field, we can be sure that new inventions will have a vital effect.

New developments like frequency-modulation radio, stratosphere flying and plastics are already well on their way into our daily lives. The main "bottle neck," however, is getting their benefits before the public and persuading people to accept them.

This is the job of selling, and no country is better equipped to do it than ours, with its tradition of American salesmanship. In the future as in the past, the selling of useful new products will create new jobs and raise the standard of living.

In life insurance we couldn't have brought security to a fraction of those who have it today.

The people of this country and Canada make up only 7% of the world's population—yet they own nearly 70% of the world's life insurance!

YOUNG people are growing up in a world which, with its new conveniences and new luxuries, will tempt them to "let tomorrow take care of itself." In this new world there is as great a need for someone to sell foresight as there is for someone to sell the newest radio set. Otherwise our progress may enrich the present only to impoverish the future.

Competing with a hundred transient influences, the life insurance agent must offer a sound and proven means for acquiring security... individual and family security that must be won by thrift, planned with wisdom and maintained with patience... the only kind of security that is worth anything.

It is this that makes his job important to all of us.

No Secrecy In Selection, Etheridge Told

Governor stated that he was making a radio address that evening, and for that reason, if I had no objections, would like to meet you in my apartment; that he expected to tender you the appointment to succeed Judge Thomas and wished to discuss it with you. I told him I was not certain that I would be at home, but would be glad to have him use my apartment, and that I might, in fact, be there myself. As it turned out, I was there when you came. The Governor was about an hour late, but came in about 9:30.

"Immediately upon his arrival he told you that he was going to appoint you to the superior court. Thereafter, there was some discussion, as I understood it, with other people, primarily about who would be appointed to succeed you.

"All this finally resulted in the suggestion from the Governor that he would like to conclude the appointments that night, if the persons being appointed were ready to take their respective oaths of office.

"In this situation the Governor called his secretary and asked him to get the oath book from the executive offices, called the newspapers, and at the time the appointments were formally made and the oaths administered there were a number of people, including your wife and children (your two sons and daughter), and a number of other prominent people, among whom were several judges of the superior court as well as the civil court of Fulton county.

"While apparently all of this occurred purely as a matter of circumstance in my apartment, I saw nothing and heard nothing connected with the matter that could be regarded in any way as unseemly or in my judgment as improper. I, of course, had no part in any of the discussions about the appointments, except to extend any courtesy I could to those who came to my home that evening, all of whom were my personal friends. Therefore, any implication or suggestion that there was any secrecy or improper circumstances connected with your appointment is wholly unauthorized, and it is difficult for me to see how one could justify placing such a construction on it when informed of the facts. I would not have written this letter except for the understanding that your opponent has been advised of the facts and yet continued to make these suggestions."

Officers Hurt When Police Car Wrecks

Auto Overturns After Sideswiping Milk Truck.

A city police car was demolished and two policemen slightly injured early yesterday morning in a wreck on the new Buford highway more than a mile outside the city limits, police records disclosed.

The injured policemen were listed as P. A. Rhodes and J. C. Varnum. Both were treated at Grady hospital and dismissed.

The accident occurred when the two were chasing a speeder and sideswiped a milk truck near the Cherokee Bridge road intersection, the police report said. The police car careened off the highway and overturned four times, the report states.

The driver of the truck, listed as Clifford Huet, of Doraville, was uninjured.

The alleged speeder was later arrested by DeKalb county police and lodged in city jail on a charge of suspicion-investigation, the report states.

Of Paraguay Is Named

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Sept. 8. (UP)—The cabinet today named War Minister General Higinio Morinigo provisional president of Paraguay, succeeding Jose Felix Estigarribia, who died in an airplane accident.

Estigarribia and his wife, Julia Miranda Cueto, were killed yesterday when their plane, piloted by an army officer, crashed near the resort city of San Bernardino. The pilot also was killed. The Estigarribias were making a customary weekend flight when the crash occurred, reportedly in a heavy fog.

2 Loan Plans Advanced for Small Business

'Venture' Capital Would Be Supplied for Development.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(P)—Two possible methods of government aid in supplying "venture" capital to small business firms—through insured bank loans or through regional lending corporations jointly financed by the government and private business—were advanced today in a report by the temporary economic committee.

Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming, the committee chairman, said in a statement accompanying the report that "the principal obstacle to the prosperous development of small business is the difficulty experienced by small business men in securing venture capital with which to finance their operations."

TO THE FARMERS OF GEORGIA

When elected Commissioner of Agriculture, as I am going to be next Wednesday, I pledge to do the following things:

1.—To make the Department of Agriculture a department of service, not of savings. Your money directly and wholly supports the department. Every dollar collected from you under my administration will go back to you in service. None of your money will be wasted, but none of it will be hoarded in some Atlanta bank to make a fake and phony showing of "economy."

2.—To give you a fertilizer inspection that really means something. My policy and program in reference to the fertilizer companies will be simple: "Gentlemen, what you print on your labels, you must place in your sacks. Otherwise, your sacks will not go out. And I do not mean maybe."

3.—To take your State Farmers Market out of the control of wholesale produce dealers, brokers, pinhookers and other undesirable who are using your Farmers Market as a livelihood to the detriment of the farmers who frequent this market. When you come to this Market under my administration, you can get your produce into it and get access to buyers. You will not be parked outside, blocks away, and denied access to buyers, such as you have been.

4.—To send expert marketing agents to Northern markets during heavy movements of melons, peaches, vegetables, etc., to protect you against exploitation (often thievery) by middle men.

These things can be done. All it takes is freedom from financial obligation to special interests, plus courage. These things, I promise you, will be done under my administration.

Most gratefully I thank you for the support you are giving my candidacy, and most confidently I assure you of my election.

Your friend,

Senate Group Against Draft House Passed

Speedy Adjustment of Differences by Joint Committee Is Seen.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(P)—Senate supporters of peace-time conscription expressed general dissatisfaction today with the delayed draft amendment adopted by the house last night before it passed the Burke-Wadsworth selective service bill by a vote of 263 to 149.

At the same time, both Democratic Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, and Acting Republican Leader Austin, of Vermont, said that this and other differences between senate and house versions of the compulsory military training legislation should be adjusted speedily by a joint house-senate committee.

By a seven-vote margin, 207 to 200, the house directed a 60-day recruiting drive, stimulated by a presidential proclamation, before any men were conscripted to supply the first quota of 400,000 trainees for the army.

Fill Difference.
Under this proposal, advanced by Representative Fish, Republican, New York, the registration of prospective trainees would be carried out, but the draft would be applied only to fill out the differences between the number of volunteers and the quota.

After next January 1 the President could call for an additional quota of 400,000 and after another 60 days invoke the draft if there were insufficient volunteers.

Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, who helped defeat a similar proposal in the senate, 43 to 41, said "this attempted mixture of voluntary and compulsory systems would delay and confuse the whole program."

"If part of the men come from volunteers, then those who are conscripted will be branded as slackers," the Texan said. He predicted that the senate-house committee would strike out this provision.

To Seek Adjournment.
Senators said there would be less difficulty over other senate-house differences and some predicted final congressional action would send the first peacetime military conscription bill to the White House before this week ends.

Leaders indicated that once this was done, they would renew a drive for congressional adjournment, or at least a recess until after the November elections.

The job of compromising the house and senate differences on the training bill will begin tomorrow. House members of the conference committee, headed by Chairman May, Democrat, Kentucky, of the military committee, were named last night. Chairman Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, of the senate military committee, will head the senate group, to be appointed tomorrow.

"Industry Draft" Likely.
No trouble is expected over the "draft industry" provision, as congress members have designated it.

Senator Russell, Democrat, Georgia, one of the authors of a proposal of this nature in the senate bill, expressed approval of a modified house version.

FROM ONE BEAUTY TO ANOTHER—Blond Patricia Donnelly, of Detroit, who captured the title "Miss America" in the 1939 Atlantic City beauty contest, is shown crowning brown-haired Frances Marie Burke, 19, Philadelphia model, who walked off with the honors for 1940. ## 'Miss America' Wants Escort Tall and Manly

Pretty Philadelphia Lass Is Crowned at Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 8.—(P)—Miss Frances Marie Burke, of Philadelphia, chosen for her beauty, charm and talent as the 1940 "Miss America" is a girl without a steady boy friend, she confided today.

But, gentlemen, don't step up unless you're "tall and manly."

Miss Burke, who is 19, elevated at the Atlantic City beauty pageant early today from the rank of "Miss Philadelphia" to that of "Miss America," laid down these specifications for an escort, but said they were virtually the only requirements. She is 5-feet-9 herself, weighs 120 pounds and has brown hair.

Answering scores of questions so that the nation might better know "Miss America," she said: "The only thing I want to be now is a top-notch model. Of course, if I get a chance to get on the stage or in the movies, that would make me very happy, but my main ambition right now is to be a model."

IT'S GENE TALMADGE!

It's easy to understand why Gene Talmadge's thousands of supporters extend from the Georgia mountains to the coast. . . . For while he is a successful farmer, he is also a respected business and professional man. These people know that Talmadge has at heart the best interests of the state, and that from his past experience as both Commissioner of Agriculture and Governor, he best understands the needs of Georgia citizens. Friends of Talmadge present pictures here depicting him as the simple man of the soil; in addition, they have asked him to set forth his platform. It's a good one and it is well remembered that Talmadge keeps his promises.

"If I am elected Governor I pledge myself to . . . . .

1. Maintain Schools and Pay Teachers.
Schools will run full terms. Teachers will be paid promptly each month. Debts now owed county school boards and our teachers will be paid in full by March 1, 1941.

2. Eliminate Waste and Extravagance in All Branches of State Government.
When I left office after my previous terms as Governor, there was a cash balance of $11,000,000 in the state treasury. Now, by July 1, 1941, it will owe at least $50,000,000. Waste and red tape must go if I am Governor. I will pull the state out of debt and people will get honest value for every dollar in taxes that they pay.

3. Protect County Governments.
The Counties and County unit system will remain intact. There will be no abolishment or consolidation of counties. We will give them additional contracts to maintain the highways in our state. They can do this less expensively than the state, and it will help the counties finance their burdens. Our county system safeguards local self government—it is the foundation of true democracy.

4. Veto Any Sales Tax.
There will be no sales tax. True, it relieves the big tax payer, but it burdens the poor. A sales tax would create thousands of state jobs, taxes would be collected by the state—if it became a law—it would be 'goodbye' to the counties.

5. Encourage Development of Natural Resources.
Research toward the development of our gold and natural oil will be encouraged. There will be no more waste in game and fish which could be so plentiful. Farmers will be encouraged and taught to make permanent pastures; cattle and stock raising will be forwarded.

6. Look Into Utility Rates.
During my past terms as Governor I reduced utility rates from 15 to 40 per cent, enabling our people to pocket over $10,000,000 per year. The present rates appear to be reasonable but if they become unreasonable, the rates will be adjusted.

7. Deal Fairly With Capital and Labor.
We must have industry in Georgia managed by executives; we must have labor, unorganized and organized. Industry deserves a reasonable profit—labor a fair wage. They must and will work together for the benefit of Georgia.

8. Co-operate With the National Government.
Preparedness for America—YES. I shall co-operate with the National Government wherever the interest of my state and my country is involved."

While We Sleep

On the far side of the Atlantic ocean a small land, home of a mighty people, stands as the final rampart of Europe against a fearful and horrible force that has been let loose upon the world. Geographically adjacent to the ancient continent, within the European range yet not of it, Britain today stands as the final line of defense, in that hemisphere, against a foe who personifies all that free men of free countries abhor and detest.

Night after night the enemy bombers roar across that land, driving sleep from weary eyes and making repose impossible in the hideous dark.

Britishers, from the pilot in his Hurricane fighter plane miles above the earth, to each humble member of the population, are meeting the challenge with a spirit and a heroism that should be inspiration to all free men, everywhere. Even Hitler must stand astonished at the strength of morale in a people who can laugh even as the bombs of destruction fall among them.

But we, on this side, should never forget that, all through those sleepless nights for Britain, we in America sleep in quiet peace, our homes, our loved ones and our lives safe. They bear the brunt. They fight and endure for their own cause, true, but after that they are holding out for us. Involuntarily or not, Britain today is fighting our fight almost as much as she is fighting her own.

This being true, what manner of American can it be who would oppose, or criticize, the sending of every possible material aid that America can spare, to help to hold that British line of defense. If that line breaks, there will be nothing between us and the horrid ambitions of the ruthless Nazi. Nothing save our own ships and men of the navy, insufficient in numbers, though unsurpassed in ability and in courage, to properly protect our dual oceanic fronts.

It will take at least two, more probably four, years for this country to place herself in condition to face a victory-glutted, ruthless foe. Our only hope is that we may be granted that time to get ready. And the only means of gaining that time, is the valor of Britain.

Britain endures through the hideous nights and days, while we go about our peaceful ways and sleep in undisturbed security. Let us pray our peace may remain and let us act to that end by sending every available ship and plane and gun and war material and dollar we can spare, to help to hold Britain, our own defender.

A new and winsome theory is that France lost the war because her leaders loafed in the boudoirs of lady friends. Love conquers all, but not under present conditions.

A Glimpse Into the Past

Of more than casual interest is the announcement that the 92-year-old files of the United States court for the northern district of Georgia are to be brought up to date with a new and simplified card index system. There is a great deal of interesting history buried within those files, glimpses into the past that stir the imagination and bring a glow of pride.

Files of the court go back to 1848, when the northern district was established. Court records bear many signatures famous in the history of the south. These include those of General James Longstreet, the Confederate leader, who was appointed marshal of the district in 1881, and Colonel Alfred E. Buck, once clerk of the court, then United States marshal and later American minister to China.

Old records show that when the state seceded from the Union, business then before the court was transferred to the Confederate court for trial before Judge Edward J. Hardin. After Appomattox, the Confederate court docket was transferred to the re-established United States court. When first set up, district court was held in Marietta.

Work on re-indexing the thousands of cases on record will begin immediately.

On top of food restrictions, a scarcity, of tobacco besets the civilian in wartime Germany. Obviously, one can't eat his cabbage and smoke it, too.

On the other hand, what could be more soothing than a pre-war machine, during the long wait in the dentist's outer office?

Title to the Windsors, Too?

There is always in this happy world some little problem to nag the peace of man. Now, amidst all the gay trumpeting to herald our transfer of 50 destroyers for those strategically located strips of land along our Atlantic shore, there blares one tiny, sour note. What, oh, what is to become of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor?

Could it be that the patriotic fervor of our military men in cohesion with that of the British has ruthlessly hurled aside one of the weightiest problems involved in the transfer of this land? Does this transfer entitle the United States to possession of the Duke and Duchess along with the rights to naval bases in the Bahamas? Surely the American public, which took so sympathetic an interest in conducting the affairs of the British commonwealth when Edward first made known his affection for our self-expatriated American beauty, will not now sit idly by and see this gay couple divested of its last shred of authority.

Just when everything looked brightest for the royal pair, disaster seems about to lift its ugly head. For endless months, the brightest minds of the United Kingdom had strained at the problem of what to do with the Windsors. During the honeymoon period of the present war, Edward and his wife stoutly served their King all along the brighter night spots of the Mediterranean, lending gaiety and prestige to the swankier honky-tonks of southern France. But the collapse of France unfortunately robbed him of his duties abroad, and then, too, France was no longer quite her gay old self. So the Duke and Duchess heard the voice of duty call all the way across the Atlantic, where the peaceful Bahamas seemed a welcome relief from the tedium of warfare.

And now see what we have done! Our government should no longer keep us in suspense. A nation burns to know who has title to the Duke and Duchess. Have we at last brought our own Wally back home? Can our sailors on shore leave at Nassau casually drop in, in our quaint American way, for a game of spin the pan or a few taps on the kegs? Although the time is running short, Billy Rose might even yet be encouraged to present the royal pair as an aquabelle and an aquabeau. And thus they might become truly American.

Americans, who love champions in any field, would joyfully welcome the news that after all these years of waiting we have at last taken as one of our own the greatest tourist attraction south of Niagara.

Add hapless victims of the new warfare: A girl child, born in a Suffolk village during a Nazi air raid, has been christened Bombastine.

John W. Bennett Sr.

The death of John W. Bennett Sr., at Waycross, brings to a close a career which, from the standpoint of worthy service to his state, has not been surpassed in many years.

Mr. Bennett was a member of the first legislature to meet in the capitol at Atlanta and, since that time, he has served the public in various capacities, but always unselfishly and with unimpeachable wisdom. He has been a state senator, United States district attorney, a trustee of the University of Georgia and at the time of his death he was a member of the University System board of regents.

It is only the rare man who, blessed with gifts of mind and heart such as Mr. Bennett's, finds opportunity for so much valuable service to his fellow citizens. All Georgia will mourn his passing.

Editorial of the Day

(From The Baltimore Evening Sun.)

One of the chief reasons why the number of livestock in the south is so small, in comparison with most farming areas, is that the south has followed primarily a plantation style of farming. Most of the great plantations are gone, it is true, but even the smaller farms still adhere to the idea of the plantation. A farm that is devoted almost entirely to tobacco or cotton is a "plantation," to use a term as old as "plantation"—it is devoted to planted crops, not to general husbandry.

A more important reason, perhaps, is the extreme heat in many regions of the south. Cattle need plenty of shade in hot weather. When the temperature gets beyond 85 degrees, most breeds of cattle of European stock—which come under the heading of Bos Taurus—develop a fever. This fever may not make them ill, but it does keep their weight down. For example, it has been proved that Angus breeding stock brought from the northerly areas of the middle west to Louisiana, average 1,050 pounds at a certain age, produced calves which, when they reached the same age, weighed less than 820 pounds.

Here was a heavy loss. However, experiments were made with these, the smaller cattle, in which a Brahma bull, imported from India, where it gets very hot, was bred to the Angus cows. The resultant crossbreeds grew up to be heat-resistant cattle averaging 1,100 pounds, or 50 pounds more than the original Angus stock.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

ODDS OF 9 TO 5 WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The most interesting political puzzle of the moment is whether the current slump in the stock of Wendell L. Willkie is merely seasonal, or indicates a basic unsoundness in the Willkie candidacy. That a slump has taken place, none but the blindest Willkie enthusiasts deny. Most reasonably realistic Republican leaders frankly admit it, but assert it will only make Willkie's task easier when he begins campaigning in earnest.

With the New York betting odds now standing at nine to five, however, the President and his political henchmen are convinced their fight is won. They compare the rise of Willkie strength to the post-nomination sentiment for Alf M. Landon, and contend that Willkie's present decline merely parallels the decline of Landon in 1936. To substantiate this contention, they offer considerable evidence.

For example, the Chicago boss, Ed Kelly, has recently completed a number of private polls of his own city and state, as well of such neighboring key states as Ohio. He reported to the President a few days ago that his section of the country was safely in the Roosevelt column. Similar reports have been received from other areas. Consequently, such politicians as Kelly and the Democratic national chairman, Ed Flynn, of the Bronx, are urging the President to follow his present strategy, of making a great show of sticking to his executive knitting, taking short trips to inspect key defense establishments, and occasionally delivering ostentatiously nonpolitical speeches. They want him to maintain the pretense of nonparticipation in the campaign until the last weeks of October, when they think they ought to explain the defense program in a series of radio addresses from the White House.

One of Willkie's chief problems, of course, is that he is in fundamental agreement with the President on most aspects of the major issue before the country—the issue of war policy. He is too attached to his convictions to belie them with careful silences, or with the kind of purely partisan attacks which might aid the isolationist groups to the basic Republican strength. Even his most ardent supporters are willing to agree that he has been forced to say "Me too" rather often, while the President, who once feared that Willkie would take the ball away from him on the war issue, has lately told men close to him that he is pleased with the way matters are developing.

To be sure, another course was open to Willkie on the war issue. In the matter of conscription, for example, he had an excellent opportunity to beat the President to the draw, expressing his convictions on the subject earlier and more forcibly than his rival, and mocking the President for his lack of daring. Again, in the matter of the President to the extent of issuing a statement simultaneously with the announcement of the destroyer deal, declaring he had knowledge of it and approved it. This would, of course, have allowed him to share the center of the stage with the President in a highly dramatic episode.

The advantage to Willkie of such a course was clearly pointed out to him at the time. It was also thoroughly understood in the Roosevelt circle. While the President was then nervous enough of public opinion to wish to take the destroyer matter wholly out of politics, such advisers as Attorney General Robert H. Jackson strongly opposed joint action with Willkie at the cabinet meeting at which it was discussed. But certain men close to Willkie maintained that the scheme for joint action was inspired by the White House, which was untrue, and that it was therefore planned as a trap, which was also untrue. And Willkie, naturally suspicious of the President, accepted the warnings of these men.

WAIT AWHILE? In short, it is both true that Willkie's stock has slumped, and that he has thus far failed to make the expected showing as a dashing campaigner. Nevertheless, the happy confidence of the President and the men around him still seems extremely premature. If Ed Kelly and other Roosevelt leaders have been taking polls and hoping for ground swells, so have the Willkie-ites. And the Willkie-ite polls show results precisely opposite to the polls of the Rooseveltians.

Willkie still appears to have two great advantages, neither of them much discussed or exploited. He has not yet touched on the principal issue he proposes to make against the President, that he can prepare the national defense more rapidly, and administer the government more efficiently than has been done. Both these issues have tremendous pulling power, as the third term issue may also prove to have. And he has not yet embarked on the campaign trips from which all his advisers hope great things. One of the most convincing Willkie-ite polls shows large increases in Willkie strength in almost all areas he has personally visited. If this phenomenon is repeated when he begins campaigning, and if he handles his issues as forcefully as he is equipped to do, his opponents may be smiling on the other side of their faces when November comes.

Back To School.

So, today is the day we all go back to school. At least, in Atlanta. For the public schools of the city today reopen their doors and call the children back to the classrooms.

Of course, you know that means more people than the children will be put under the process of getting an education.

The teachers, for instance. Any teacher who can't learn important things from observation of the pupils, isn't fit to be a teacher. Perhaps, the unconscious teaching by the pupils, of the teacher is more important in some instances than the routine instruction given vice versa.

And the parents. How many mothers and fathers learn just as much as little Jimmy or Jane by poring over home work with their offspring?

I'd like, today, to draw attention of the students, however, to one fundamental fact about education. Particularly the high school students. That is, true education has scarcely begun when the student is graduated, from high school or college. All these institutions of learning can do, actually, is teach the student how to study. Put his feet on the scholastic highroad, as it were, and give him a little start down that fascinating path.

"Commencement" Is Just That.

Commencement exercises next spring will be just that. The commencement, of life and of education, too. Just as the child who is first taught to read doesn't get anything by that ability alone, but only when he puts it to use, so the college graduate gains nothing by what he has been taught, unless he puts it to use in the learning, and better understanding, for more and more things, as long as his or her life shall last.

Too many students think education is a job in itself. It isn't. It is only the beginning. Formal education is but the introduction to the vastly more important education by life itself and during later years. The real education can't be instilled by any school or college or teacher or textbook. It can only come from the man himself.

But This Is Too Serious.

But this column is getting too serious. It started out to be merely a passing notation of the fact that Atlanta schools open today. And to wish pupils, teachers, parents and all concerned a good and happy scholastic year. With few truncheons, fewer necessities for discipline and classes which always score "A" for every member on every subject.

Personally, my interest in schools has now definitely left the local arena and shifted over to the University of Georgia and Athens.

The baby of the family graduated last spring from high school and, as this is written, is busy spending dad's money for the necessary equipment for the beginning of a freshman year at Athens. (Note to personal creditors: Until she is settled in her dormitory over at Athens, goodness knows when any of you will get a check.)

Anxious To Be Gone.

We, her parents, have been told, emphatically, that we are not to driver over to Athens every week, and to see her. Says she doesn't want us hanging around over there. Will snub us, coldly and openly, if we show our faces except when invited.

Also, she says she isn't coming home except on rare intervals. Perhaps Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter.

One concession is that we may, if we don't bother her too much, visit Athens for any football game we care to witness.

She says she is going to be utterly independent of the home influence—except for the old man's essential checks—from now on.

There is no allowance, in her calculations, for that maldy know as home-sickness.

And I'm wondering whether or not that iron resolution not to come home for a week or two now and then will hold good. Or whether she won't be watching, from the co-ordinate camps, on some Saturday afternoons, with a rather wistful desire to recognize the family car turning in off the highway.

Oh, well, the fledglings must try their wings. And I know of no better place than the university at Athens. I've plenty of friends there to keep unobtrusive eyes on the young lady and to let me know promptly if they think a visit from home is called for by circumstances.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Attitude of Resignation

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The effects of the trade of destroyers with Britain and of the military protectorate over Canada may be desirable, but the manner of putting across these deals was so hysterical that only a nation already reconciled to cunning and mocking dishonesty would accept them without protest. There will be no protest, however, because the people long ago wearily abandoned principle and surrendered to the what-the-hell philosophy, which holds that any crookedness short of downright criminality is all right if it is clever and if it produces results. This attitude of resignation is the result of constant attacks on the morals of the country—first on one front, then on another—ranging in magnitude from a petty but scandalous deal in faked philatelic rarities to the advantage of a few individuals who knew very well what they were doing to plain, defiant violation of law and the constitution in which the attorney general of the United States delivered a leering insult to truth.

It will be noted that most of the comment on the destroyer trade recognizes the dishonesty of the transaction but accepts the results and justifies it on the ground of necessity. The spirit of the trade was the spirit of Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin and, incidentally, of the New Deal, and worse luck, the prevailing spirit of the citizens of the United States.

Willkie's Puny Protest

Wendell Willkie's puny protests will be laughed off by a people who have lost their respect for honest dealing and all but repudiated congress as a branch of the government. Not only is Willkie making no energetic campaign as yet, but the President, with the advantage of the initiative and his reckless frontierism is smothering him with the dust of exciting actions.

It is pathetic that the candidate of the only party of opposition can be brushed off with a raucous taunt about his street address and that his little plea for the constitution should be derided as the whine of a confused and outclassed challenger, but that is how it is, and we are well on our way.

The crookedness to which the American character has adjusted itself in the years since 1932 has been exemplified no more shockingly than in the Chicago convention of the Social Democrats, in which the Kelly and Hague mobs of civic corruptors collaborated with the sanctimonious fakers detailed by the President to run the debate. This alliance showed up the cynicism of the New Deal bosses and was thoroughly exposed at the time, but the people took it with a grin and went looking for reasons to suspect Willkie.

A Great Change

This acceptance marks a great change since 1932 and 1933, when popular indignation ran high, as the lynching stories used to say, against the cheats and burglars of finance. Up to that time the Americans still had the will and the morals to resent crookedness, but steady pressure since then has reduced them to a state of acquiescence.

The appointment of a member of a gang of masked, night-riding terrorists to the supreme court was an important test in the campaign to corrupt the people, and since then the going has been fairly easy. It used to be said that the supreme court said it was, but if that ever was true it isn't any more. Today the constitution is what the attorney general says it is and the President will tell him what to say.

The dealings of Jimmy and Elliott Roosevelt, the exploitation of office for financial gain, the amazingly bold program of petty larceny, nepotism and every other kind of fraud in Washington, the bland repudiation of every promise on which the New Deal first was elected and the swelling arrogance of the embittered failures named to power in Washington all have combined to soften up the American people for the knock-out. Given another mandate in November, the New Deal will really go to town, and the constitution will be rewritten into piglatin and double-talk.

Rich Gems Recovered

More than $75,000 in jewels have been recovered by the Mexico City police for Mrs. Marie de Icaza, who reported that they were stolen from her automobile when she took her pet Pekinese for a walk through Chapultepec park. The entire treasure was found in a small store where it had been purchased by a Russian woman. She had paid for the lot prices ranging from a few cents to 20 cents each. She thought them false, as had the robbers.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

"RATS, LICE AND HISTORY" I want to start off with something about the death of a writer and some of his books and use one of them as an illustration of political conditions in Atlanta and Georgia.

There died last week in New York at the Memorial Hospital for the Treatment of Cancer and Allied Diseases, Dr. Hans Zinsser, professor of bacteriology and immunity at Harvard University medical school. He died of leukemia. This is not a good, or pleasant way, to die. There is nothing known to medical science which can halt leukemia.

He had spent a great part of his life in research. During the World War, the first one, he was sent to Serbia as a representative of the American Red Cross. He served as colonel in the medical corps of the American Expeditionary Force and for his services was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal.

During his service in Europe, in Serbia and the Balkans generally, he saw the ravages of typhus. This led him to research in history and medicine. Typhus has killed more persons than any other disease known to man. This led him to research in history and medicine.

Lice and rats were responsible, for instance, for the fall of Napoleon. It was typhus, not the cold and the Russians, which decimated Napoleon's army on the retreat from Moscow. They were cold and tired and the jolly lice bit well and the typhus came. The jolly lice got on rats and the rats carried the lice to every camp in Moscow. Rats were with them as long as the supply trains kept up with them. And so were the lice. Today one may read that a million French soldiers are sick with typhus. Rats and lice again.

No one ever did much for the lowly louse except Bobby Burns and Dr. Zinsser. Bobby Burns wrote a poem about a louse, and a very good poem, too.

Dr. Zinsser went through the pages of history and showed more military defeats caused by lice and rats than from any other cause. He showed the tremendous influence on populations and trends of history exerted by the rat and the louse.

Lice and rats have wrecked more kingdoms and cities than all the Cleopatras, Salomes and all other sirens of history; have destroyed more cities and armies than guns; have killed more soldiers and civilians than all the guns, bombs and poison gas of history.

If you have not read "Rats, Lice and History" I can recommend it. His second book was published but a few months ago. It was "As I Remember Him: The Biography of R. S." It is believed to be his own story and it is well worth reading.

CUMULATIVE EFFECT Since the repeal of prohibition and the placing of booze under legal controls, it is well worth noting that all the tremendous gangs, which grew out of illegal handling of booze, have been wiped out. When booze went they tried kidnapping, but that proved too unhealthy. The rats have been hard put for illegal revenue with liquor out of their hands.

In our own city, as in others, they have turned among other things, to the lottery game. The rats run it. The lice from the rats rarely may be seen, as in the case of a real typhus epidemic where four-legged rats and actual lice are the carriers.

The rats also try their hand at vice, at gambling and at any phase of illegal activity which enables them to find a profit. The lice from the rats in all cities may be illustrated by their hidden influence on politics; by their frequent corrupting of some public officials; by their corrupting of as many police as can be reached; by their influencing of third-rate lawyers willing to deal with them, and by other means.

The lice of the lottery rats, of the vice rats, of the gambling and all underworld rats, get into the municipal clothing and on the body of government.

Some years ago the lice had given the municipal government of Atlanta such a bad case of political-and-bad-government typhus, the people went out and got rid of the carriers.

Here of late we have seen cities getting rid of their lice and rats, or trying to do so. We have seen Kansas City and New Orleans and other cities and states at work on the job.

OUR OWN OUTLOOK At many of our precincts last Wednesday night, while the count of votes was going on, there was prominent in the crowds, some of our rats.

Few, if any, of them were registered voters. Their leaders were not even residents of Atlanta.

Yet, there they were. They have the lice of bad and corrupt government on them. It is alarming to find them so interested in our elections. One may ask why they were there and why they were allowed there.

Legal control of liquor in our larger cities has made these rats hungry. So, therefore, are the lice.

They seek always to defeat honesty and decency. They are on the lookout for any crack in the integrity of public officials where the lice of governmental typhus may be deposited.

They are always active. They get out their votes. They assist in the defeat of bonds, of good government generally. It is disturbing they are out of jail. It is alarming they are about our polls. As long as the public is not interested, as long as inadequate election laws are in force; as long as complacency rules, the rats will be on the job.

Rats and lice have destroyed more than armies.

Americans Never Turn Against A Man Who Will Fight A Buzz-Saw

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

When the other Roosevelt was a candidate for the vice presidency, the chief issue of the campaign was the definition of sound money.

Bryan was promising to make times good by the "free and unlimited coinage of silver"; and in the states where silver was mined, the people naturally regarded him as a prophet. We always worship the politician who promises to put money in our pockets.

When Teddy made his first campaign speech in the silver states, he faced an enormous crowd of people who regarded him as an enemy. He believed in the gold standard, and abominated Bryan's free-silver heresy, and the people knew it. They expected him to dodge.

Yet he strode to the front of the speaker's stand; shook his head like a bull moose inviting battle; thrust his jaw toward the far horizon and roared: "I stand on a gold platform!"

There was a moment of incredulous silence, and then the crowd went wild. Men threw their hats in the air and pounded one another on the back and laughed and yelled till they were limp.

An eastern politician, scarcely believing what he saw and heard, turned to a local man and asked: "Have these people gone crazy, or has Roosevelt converted them?"

"Neither," said the native. "They are cheering his colossal nerve and incredible courage."

Our people haven't changed. They still admire forthright courage above all other qualities.

Dudley Glass

Spends Loafing Weekend Down In South Georgia.

QUITMAN, Ga., Sept. 8.—It is always pleasant to spend a few idle days in Pinetop, on the edge of Quitman. It is the home of Edna Cain Daniel, editor and publisher of the Quitman Free Press, and the best loafing place I know. When Mrs. Daniel and the Mistress of the Manor go rambling about visiting gardens, I am not left without companionship, for Brown, the wirehaired terrier, is good company.

But I find I must come to the Free Press office to type a column. There is a machine at the house, but habit is hard to overcome and I can't work in a home. Not even at my own home. Perhaps because it is too quiet.

But it isn't quiet in the Free Press shop. I can hear the type-setting machine in the rear. Beth Williams Powers, conductor of the noted column called "This Weary World" is in and out. A sharecropper calls to pay a nickel for a stack of old newspapers. He uses them to paste over cracks in his cabin walls. Friends of a candidate arrive with copy for a political advertisement. A few prominent citizens drop in to look over a city newspaper or to ask how the governor's race is going to come out—as if anybody knew. There's a lot of life around the office of a weekly newspaper.

Quitman folk say times are getting better in Brooks county, despite a bad watermelon year. Melons are the big crop down here—and an exceedingly risky one.

Truck Competition.

Frank Underwood Jr., secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, blames this season's poor prices for melons on two kinds of weather and interstate trucks.

"Georgia weather was too wet," he explained, "and that reduced the quality of the melons. In the east and midwest the summer was too cool, so people didn't eat melons. Whenever news comes in that a heat wave has hit New York or Chicago melon prices go up."

The way the trucks affect prices is peculiar, Mr. Underwood explained.

"The railroads," he said, "are not permitted by law to accept any but standard grade melons, inspected and packed."

"The 'cull' melons go back to the farm, to be fed to the pigs. But the trucks go out and buy them for little or nothing. The truck hauls half as many as a freight car holds. It gets to New York as fast or faster than the freight train."

"The standard melons, shipped by rail, will be offered consumers at a dollar each. But up rolls a truck of 'culls' which can be bought for a quarter each. They are just as big and look just as good. So you can see why the bottom drops out of the market. Sometimes a cull doesn't bring enough to pay the freight."

Mr. Underwood thinks the same grading and inspection rules should be applied to trucks as are applied to the railroads—to give them an even break.

Rural Housing.

One learns more about Georgia and her various problems in an hour or so of chat with the home folks than in a month in a city. Because these people are close to the soil. If a farmer doesn't prosper the town's business falls off—and in a hurry.

Brooks county just now is interested in the rural housing project of the federal government.

It probably is no better nor worse than neighbor counties, but there are scores of "homes" of tenant farmers and sharecroppers hardly fit for pigsties, much less for human habitation. I know that, because I've just looked at photographs of them.

On the theory that a picture talks more eloquently than words, the Brooks County Chamber of Commerce has sent an album of these photographs to George Hamilton, state treasurer, who also is chairman of the state housing board. Mr. Hamilton has a million and a half dollars of federal funds to divide among 15 counties and Brooks wants her share.

Just next door, in Thomas county, the first farm home in the United States to be built under the rural housing plan is being erected. It is expected to serve as a model. It will cost $1,324, and the occupant, Elbert V. Ellis, will pay about $50 a year rent, agreeing to keep up necessary repairs.

Rural housing, it was explained to me, isn't a charity affair. The home will be paid for—but over a long term of years.

Green and Cool.

"You can't have everything," says the adage. I realize you can't have modern traffic in a city of Atlanta's size and also have downtown streets lined with trees.

But I do wish midtown Atlanta could possess the trees which make so many of these old South Georgia towns so green and cool and lovely. I'm thinking of Quitman and Thomasville and Camilla and other towns on the highways down here.

Especially the live oaks and magnolias. To my mind there is no tree to compare with the spreading live oak unless it be the majestic pine—and a pine provides mighty little shade.

Between Albany and Thomasville and on the road from Thomasville to Quitman there are several notable groups of live oaks which hang over the highway. The road beneath is cool and pleasant.

Live oaks probably wouldn't prosper in Atlanta or nearby. I wish they would—and that there was at least one giant in our yard.

Federal Court Will Clear Up Spring Docket

Russell To Aid Underwood; Revival of Georgia Probe Indicated.

United States court for the northern district of Georgia reopens this morning with two northern district judges sitting for the first time in the court's history.

Judge Robert L. Russell, recently appointed by the President to take care of additional business in the area, will preside in the appellate courtroom in the Federal building. He will try non-jury civil cases.

Judge E. Marvin Underwood, presiding in the district courtroom, will hear the criminal calendar.

Twenty-four additional trial jurors had been drawn yesterday, and requested to report to Judge Underwood's courtroom today. They are Burton Hunt, Lynn W. Werner, Clarence McNeil, Negro; Hugh T. Inman, of Atlanta; William L. Hooper, of Covington; John R. Duncan Jr., of Douglasville; Charles E. Jolly, Rutherford L. Ellis, Charles F. Wagner, of Atlanta; W. Henry Wyatt, Louis G. Watts, Negro, of Atlanta; William T. Langley, of Palmetto; George W. Coleman, Richard W. Pope, Negro; Walter L. Fulton, Spence S. Brewer, William S. Loftis, Nelson D. Johnston, of Atlanta; John M. Wallace, of Ben Hill; Olin E. Cofer, Charles G. Adams and Henry L. Hills, of Atlanta.

TOWNSEND MEETING.

The Townsend Pension Club, of Atlanta, will meet at 7 o'clock tomorrow night at Adair park. L. E. Wheeler, secretary, has announced. Vester M. Owenby, attorney, will speak, and the public and all candidates for state and county offices are invited to attend.

Good Morning

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Arthur S. Maxwell is the author of an article in the current issue of Signs of the Times, under the title, "Drink the Cause of Crime." His conclusions are based on personal interviews with prison officials and attaches of 15 states. Mr. Maxwell says:

"More than half the prisoners entering the penal institutions of America blame their downfall on drink. . . . This staggering fact provides interesting evidence regarding the liquor traffic—evidence which careful students of society will not disregard."

Here are some of the testimonies quoted by Mr. Maxwell: "I find that 50 per cent of the inmates of our institution state that liquor is the direct cause of their crime," E. J. Hollister, superintendent Bureau of Identification, Colorado state penitentiary.

"I have made a survey of 100 typical cases in which 25 of them said they were under the influence of liquor when they committed the crime for which they were sentenced," J. E. Temple, record clerk, Wisconsin state penitentiary.

"I would say that approximately 50 per cent of our prisoners attribute their downfall directly to liquor. The average age of our prisoners is 26 to 28 years," William D. Coey, record clerk, Montana state prison.

"At least 50 per cent of the prisoners I interview attribute their downfall to liquor, and 90 per cent of the prisoners returned to this institution for parole violation give liquor as the cause of their failure," Jesse Walton, fingerprint clerk, Utah state prison.

"I personally asked the last 50 men admitted to our institution the cause of their downfall, and 16 said liquor. I judge that 50 per cent of the inmates here got into trouble because of liquor," H. P. Falls, parole officer Idaho state penitentiary.

"Approximately 60 per cent of the new inmates in this prison ascribe their downfall to excessive use of alcohol," Bert Staehle, superintendent of identification, Illinois state penitentiary. "The records of our institution show that 32 per cent of our commitments are made on the charge of intoxication," Floyd Hemmer, superintendent Indiana state farm.

"I find that about 50 per cent of our prisoners attribute their downfall to liquor. The average age of our prisoners is 19 years," Lewis Lindsey, record clerk, Oklahoma state reformatory.

"During my term of office at this institution, I have questioned hundreds of men as to the cause of their crime, and 75 per cent of them answered liquor," J. C. MacCaffrey, sergeant Nevada state prison.

I do not have the space to continue the testimonies.

Elliott Roosevelt's Charge Is Denied

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(P) The German and Mexican embassies declared today that there was no truth in a statement by Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, that Germany had financed a "red militia" of 200,000 men in Mexico.

A German embassy spokesman said: "There is no such undertaking in Mexico, no such organization as a 'red militia.' The Mexican government is fully capable of managing its own affairs."

The President's son said in an address last night at Lawton, Okla., that "while Mexico tells us that they have an army of only 100-and-some-odd thousand men, I can tell you, and I know it for a fact, that there is an army that was officered and trained by former revolutionaries from Spain, and there are 7,000 of them in Mexico today."

Food, Medicine Shortage In French Penal Colony

SAN JUAN, P. R., Sept. 8.—(P) A shortage of food and medicines and a general demoralization prevail in the French penal colony of Guiana, according to reports reaching here. Devil's Island is the most notorious prison in the colony.

Jailers have relaxed their watch on the prisoners, these reports said, and many of the convicts are escaping. Twenty-two reached the islands of Vieques, off Puerto Rico, yesterday.

Ralls To Make Final Drive in North Georgia

Commissioner of Agriculture Candidate Will Stress Platform.

Hamilton Ralls, of Hogsansville, candidate for commissioner of agriculture, will take a swing through northwest Georgia today and tomorrow in winding up his campaign for the state house office, he announced yesterday.

During his final tour, Ralls said he would stress the seven planks in his platform. They are (1) tax-free gasoline and kerosene used on the farm, (2) free parking space on state markets for bonafide Georgia farmers, (3) canneries and dehydrating plants at state markets to absorb surplus produce, (4) an adequate and dependable marketing system operated in the farmers' interest, (5) an improved and more helpful market bulletin, (6) legislation to protect farmers against impure seed, and (7) protection for farmers against discriminatory legislation.

Indian Skull 2,000 Years Old, Is Stolen in Florida

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Sept. 8. (P)—Thieves with a penchant for the ancient have pilfered an Indian skull, believed by archaeologists to be 2,000 years old, from its centuries-old resting place in a burial mound at Marineland, 18 miles south of St. Augustine.

Unearthed a year ago by Vernon Lamme, state archaeologist, the skull had been sent to the Smithsonian Institute for study and returned here for exhibition at Lamme's field office.

Dr. Henry Field, of the Chicago Field Museum, termed the skull one of the "most valuable" finds in Florida from an archaeological standpoint.

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 8.—From Georgia, Tennessee and faraway Texas, more than 3,000 folks—old and young—flocked to Marietta's new recreation center yesterday for the annual Cobb County Singing Convention.

From 10 o'clock in the morning until late in the afternoon, the folks sang songs both old and new and listened to quartets, trios and solos.

Among the featured performers were a group from Dallas, Texas, which included the Stamps-Daniel quartet; W. F. Storey and Jim Waits, a basso-profundo, whose tones literally rolled along the floor of the recreation hall.

Paul Cochran, of Smyrna, president of the convention, said it was one of the most successful events in years.

RAILROADS AGAIN OPPOSE PROGRESS

Why does the railroad management oppose the construction of a pipe line and entry of another industry in Georgia which would further develop the resources of the State and add to the tax revenue and thereby relieve the burden under which the people are suffering today?

Why did the railroad management oppose:

Buses

Trucks

Airplanes

Steel Pullman Cars

Automatic Signals

Gasoline Tank Cars

Streamlined Trains

Smoke Ordinances

Railroad executives not only have opposed every type of industry which would provide competition, but have also opposed improvement in their own facilities, and have adopted improvements only when compelled to do so.

Gasoline is transported by pipe line in every other section of the United States. Why? Because it is just as natural to transport gasoline by pipe line as it is to provide the water supply of the City of Atlanta by pipe line or as it is to provide the natural gas upon which you cook your meals and provide heat for your homes.

The cost of transporting gasoline by pipe line is one-third of the cost of moving it by rail, and the average price of gasoline in those communities served by pipe line is approximately 10% less than the price of gasoline in those sections which depend on rail transportation, and a pipe line does, therefore, mean A SAVINGS IN PRICE TO THE CONSUMER.

Do railroads oppose pipe lines because of unemployment or loss of revenue? No.

The records show that in other sections the railroads have not complained of loss of revenue because of pipe lines and have not complained of reduction of employment. In other sections of the United States some of the same railroads who oppose this project cooperate and freely grant permits to pipe line companies to build the lines across the railroad tracks.

These railroad executives claim that this pipe line will cause a loss of revenue of 10%, but by their own testimony before a committee of the United States Senate it was shown that their entire revenue during the year 1939 from gasoline and all other petroleum products was less than 6% of their entire revenue in this territory. This one pipe line could not possibly substantially produce a reduction in revenue. Then why do the railroads oppose this pipe line? In order to maintain high freight rates which have been discriminatory against the South since the time of the War Between the States. An examination of the record will establish that these railroads have never reduced these discriminatory rates on gasoline or other petroleum products except in those instances where competition has forced this action. Since this pipe line was announced the railroads have reduced the rates on gasoline 20%—and where? Only in that territory in which this pipe line would operate. These railroads recognize that if this pipe line is constructed they will be forced to further reduce those rates where progressive pipe lines operate, and thereby the consuming public will benefit. The record further shows that as soon as the recent rate reduction became effective the savings was passed on to the consuming public.

For many years the railroads enjoyed, and they are trying to continue, a monopoly in the transportation of this product at the expense of the consuming public. So long as the railroads enjoy a monopoly the people in Georgia will continue to pay the penalty.

If railroad management was progressive and interested in the future growth of the South, it would not oppose this pipe line or any other competition, and this fact is not only known to the public, but to the railroad employees as well.

Do not be misled. This is the same old railroad story; your grandfathers heard it, your fathers heard it, and now you are hearing it again.

GEORGIA'S NEXT GOVERNOR SPEAKS

Remarks of Mrs. J. A. Rollison, of Waycross, Ga., chairman of the Women's Division of the Democratic Party in Georgia, introducing Columbus Roberts, candidate for Governor, in his radio address:

"Georgia, especially the good women of Georgia, are singularly fortunate in this election. We have as a candidate for Governor a man of whom can be wholly and truly proud, to work for, to vote for, and to elect. He is such a man as we can hold up as an example to boys and girls as a living proof of the truth of all the maxims of right living, clean living hard work and honesty that we want our children to believe in. The women and mothers of Georgia have caught the inspiration in the life and personality of this amazing man and are going to elect him.

"I wish that you who have not seen him could see him as he stands in this studio here tonight. He is 69 years old, but he looks hardly more than 50. He has been through a gruelling three months of campaigning, speaking two or three times a day, on the go night and day, sleeping scarcely six hours a night. Yet he looks as fresh and as vigorous as though he had just come home from a pleasant vacation.

"He is the same age as Cordell Hull, whom many thought would be Democratic candidate for President until we drafted President Roosevelt. He is eight years younger than Chief Justice Hughes, a man whose progressive ideas have set a pace for younger men on our Supreme Court. He is seven years younger than was Georges Clemenceau, the Tiger of France, at the time he dominated the Versailles Conference.

"The clean life he has led, the vigorous life that started as a plowboy on a tenant farm, has given him his rugged and vigorous physique—capable of more hard labor than most men half his age—to back up his ripe intellect and vigorous mind.

"You are familiar with much that he has done for education, for the church, for good works of all kinds through his splendid humanitarianism. You know much of what he has done for the Georgia farmer, both in private life—as a patron of fairs, a sponsor of highways and farmers' co-operative marketing associations—and in public life as a member of the Georgia General Assembly and as Commissioner of Agriculture.

"You want to know now what he will do for Georgia as Governor. So, with pride and pleasure, I present Georgia's next Governor, the Hon. Columbus Roberts . . .

Excerpts from Columbus Roberts' Address On "Common Honesty" Over WSB, Saturday, September 7:

YOUR State Government, next January, when I take office, will seek to do something about the fiscal problems of the counties, other than talk about it, and we will see that justice is done to them.

"More than any other single thing, common honesty will solve the problems of State Government.

"When Columbus Roberts takes the oath of office as Governor, he will do so without any kind of mental reservations and with the pledge that the affairs of Georgia will be honestly administered.

"I believe there is more to honesty than merely refraining from theft. God knows we in Georgia, for years, have sustained enough loss from waste, extravagance, and just plain stealing in high places.

"Our state must not pledge its honor to our school teachers and then, after obtaining their services, go back on the promise like a fraudulent peddler.

"Our state must not hold out the hope of aid to old folks, to hungry little children and their worried mothers and then cover our failure of performance with empty phrases.

"Our officials must not, after leaving the State Treasury as bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard, falsely report to the people that it is overflowing with money and that every debt of the state is paid.

"The plain people of Georgia, who pray more often than they gather on the courthouse squares to talk politics, have made up their minds to rid Georgia of political bickering . . .

"They are weary of the lies of demagogues who misrepresent what they have accomplished, and who recite deceptive figures to bolster their failing causes.

"The people of Georgia are tired of politicians who consider the misuse of the taxpayers' money a 'normal business transaction' . . . tired of politicians who describe their improper conduct as an 'act of generosity toward the state'—suspicious of such business transactions as the sale of cattle and hogs to state institutions by a Governor . . . during his term of office five years ago.

"I do not subscribe, and never shall, to the doctrine of those political tricksters who think that public office is an open door to private profit.

"Some of them appear to have read but one verse from the Scriptures: 'Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth the grain.' And, my friends, there has been lots of 'grain-treading' in the past decade or so without any muzzles.

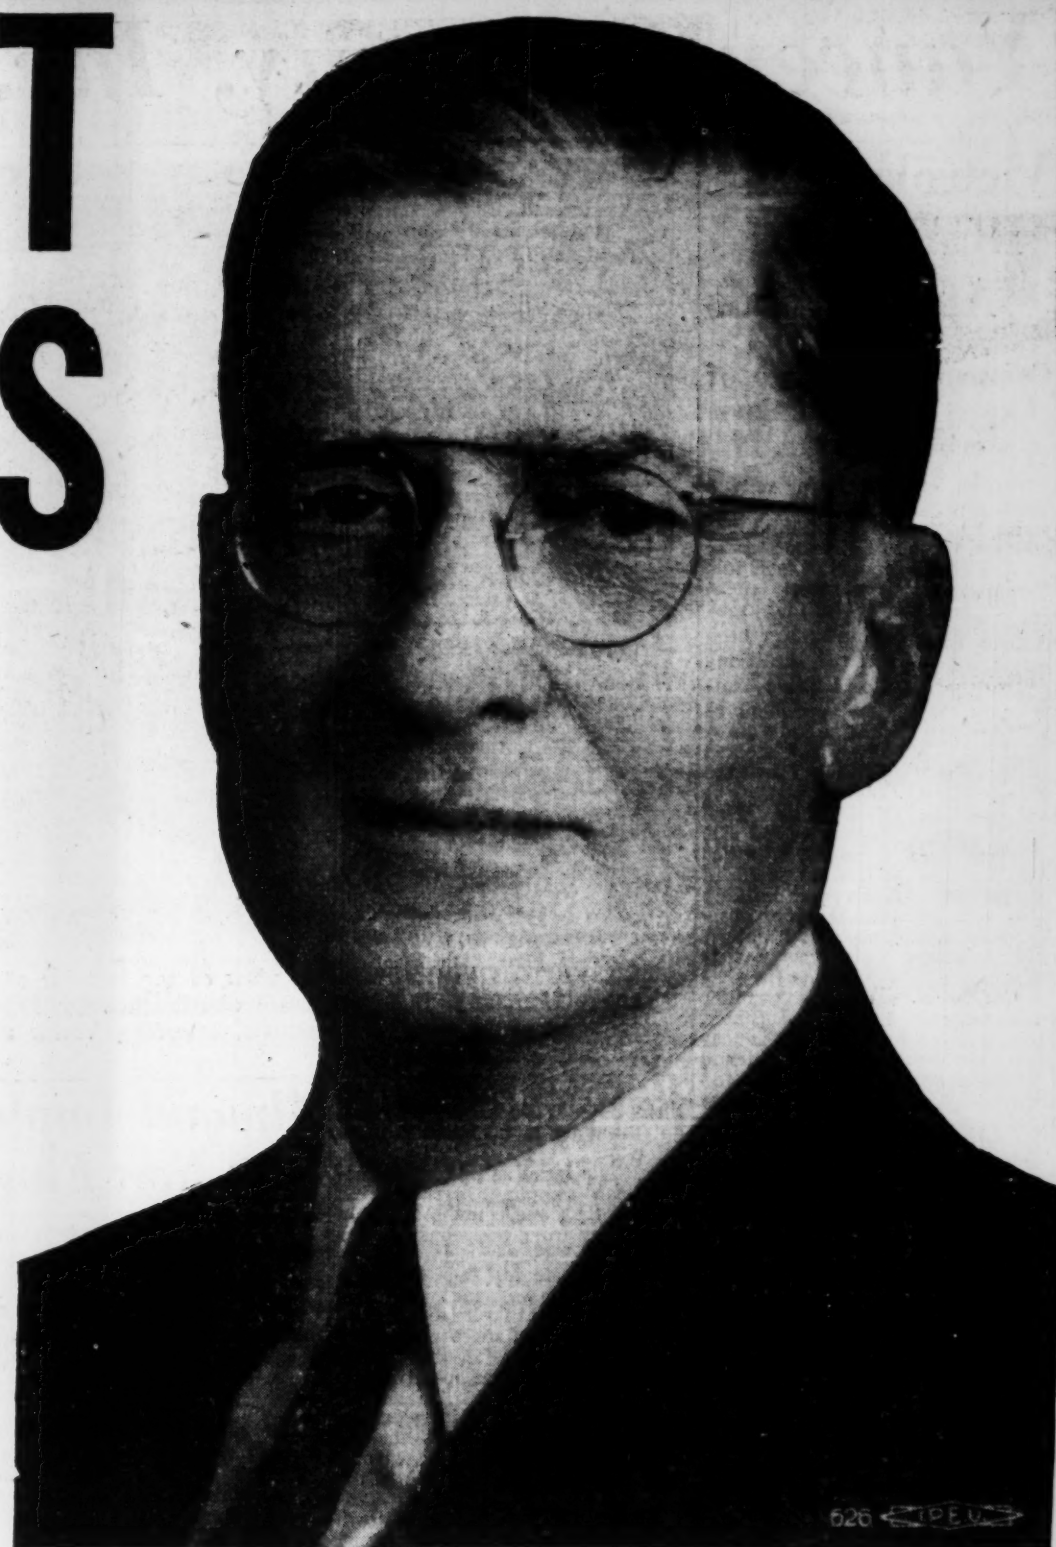

"We face grave and sad days in this world today. But the dreadful rumble of cannon from the shores of fallen France cannot deafen our ears to the thunder that roared about Sinai six thousand years ago, when it was written upon tablets of stone: 'Thou shalt not steal.' "

Yancey Company, Inc., Serving 450 Dealers RCA Products

Victrolas, RCA Radios And Records

Company Has Force of Expert Salesmen Covering the State.

Though established for only a short time, the progress being made by Yancey Company, Inc., wholesale state distributors for RCA Victor products, including Victor records, victrolas, RCA radios, and Easy Washing machines, has been most gratifying to B. Earle Yancey, president of the company. They are located at 303 Peachtree street.

Under the guidance of Mr. Yancey, who has been engaged in the road building machinery business for 29 years, and was recognized as the old-time Caterpillar distributor in the United States, ably assisted by B. Earle Yancey Jr., vice president, and Mitchell Edwards, secretary and manager, this somewhat new company has made splendid strides, judged by the influx of business which it is now enjoying.

As wholesale state distributors for the well known and popular RCA line of products, the company serves 450 dealers throughout Georgia. In addition to the office and warehouse force in this city, over which H. H. Blevins is sales manager, the company keeps six traveling and experienced salesmen on the road and working throughout the state. These salesmen are S. A. Wallace, who handles south Georgia; J. F. Gordy, who looks after sales in Atlanta—and these two men have been in the RCA-Mitchell Edwards radio picture since the old Victor talking machine days long ago, and have been associated with RCA without interruption since that time. Others are C. J. Rey, north Georgia; Grant Card and Charles W. Fulford, both of whom handle commercial sound equipment; W. C. McDonald, Victor records for the state, and Clarence Plunkett, city salesman for Victor records.

The above makes up a live and enthusiastic crew of workers for RCA products, and are putting these popular lines over throughout the state in a highly successful way.

In their large selections of records, the company carries many records that would make valuable and entertaining additions to your library of Victor musical masterpieces. "Music for the Connoisseur" is the way the company briefly describes its large range of records, many of these recordings having been made in the studios of RCA Victor's European affiliates.

They are selections infrequently heard in America today—not because of any lacking in warmth or beauty, but only because of the normal timidity of people in venturing forth into an unknown land. Each of these selections may be regarded as a jewel-like addition to any music-lover's record library.

One will find exactly what they need for enjoyment the whole summer or winter through on Victor records—music that's ideal for you by the world's greatest artists! Here is what the RCA concern says about its Victrolas:

"Experience is a great teacher, and with better than 40 years of actual experience in producing record-playing instruments, this company, with its tremendous research laboratories, consistently endeavoring to discover new and better ways of reproducing sound, is responsible for the high efficiency of an RCA Victrola as we know it today. The RCA Victrola is manufactured by a company whose interests are not alone centered in record-playing mechanisms, but in sound-reproducing equipment of all types; moving picture recording and reproducing equipment, public address systems, sound-reinforcing systems, broadcasting stations, radio sets and many others too numerous to mention. The experience gained in these various fields of sound reproduction is reflected in the present RCA Victrola."

In the RCA Victor radio line the company supplies every demand and need. Its dealers can be supplied with these wonderful instruments styled for every room

Almand Implement Company Are Now Flushed With Orders

The Almand Implement Company, located at 125 Forsyth street, S. W., is greatly pleased at the manner in which the demand for the improved Papec farm and dairy implements are coming in to the concern.

"They are coming in really faster than they can be filled," said Fred Almand, "and that's a sure sign that the harvest season is getting into full swing."

The company carries a full and complete line of all farm and dairy implements. Speaking of the improved Papec, which features the feed grinder, the feed mixer and the ensilage cutter—Mr. Almand said:

"For many years more farmers and custom men have used the Papec ensilage cutters than any other make. The Papec is known everywhere for its easy running, big capacity, long life and for its nonclog elevation. Now they are offered an improved Papec, having all these advantages plus a self-feeder that handles loose hay and straw as well as bundled fodder."

"The improved Papec takes the hardest, most disagreeable job out of having because nobody works in the hot, dusty mow. It will chop hay and blow it into a barn faster, easier and slightly cheaper than hay can be moved away whole."

"On many farms the storage space saved by chopping hay allows enough extra barn room to permit cut straw under cover, too. The improved Papec will take straw direct from the thrasher, thereby eliminating all the dis-

Mayo-Stephens Expert Fixers Water Tanks

Well-Known Welders Say Now Is the Time to Fix for Winter.

The time to fix for the cold winter weather—to set your house in order by doing those things that cannot well be done in winter—is during the warm days of summer. That's why it is suggested that now is the time to see to it that your boilers and hot water tanks are all set and ready for the winter. In many apartments, in large industrial plants, where large galvanized tanks are used, it would certainly be easier to repair them—to weld broken or leaky places—now than later in the season.

That is the type of work for which the Mayo & Stephens Welding Company are especially fitted. They are known all over this entire section as expert welders—known for the dependability of their work. In addition to paying attention to your hot water tanks, wouldn't now be a good time to have needed work done on that smokestack? If so, call Mayo & Stephens Welding Company. They are located at 454 Marietta street.

The company is not only welding engineers, but that title embraces a complete list of workmanship it is enabled to turn out. Among these is the building and repairing of boilers, tanks, structural steel, bottling bodies, dump bodies, castings, welding auto cracked tanks, and the like.

J. M. Mayo, owner and manager, has been in the welding business for 26 years, starting with the Southern railway, working as boiler-maker and welder in 1914.

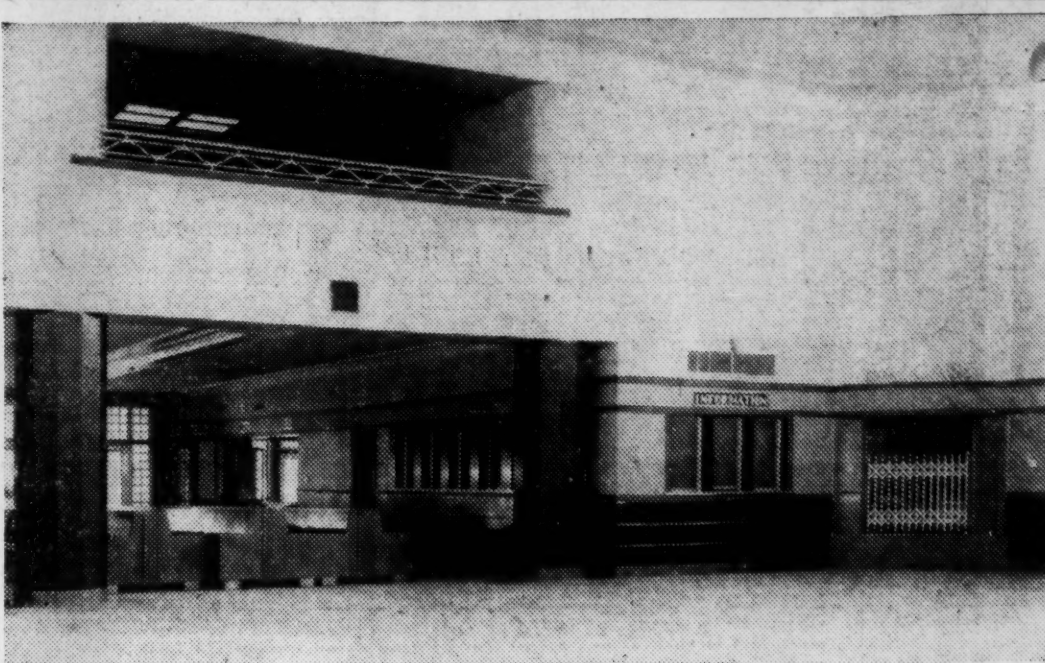

The company has the very latest equipment—modern machinery for handling any jobs in its line. It will answer calls for work—go anywhere, any time—and maintains a portable welder for outside work. This portable welder has all the accessories for welding. It will go to the job, if the job cannot conveniently come to the shop.

Bus Station Cabinet Work By Floyd Bros.

Many Compliments on the Excellence of the Job Done There.

What has been declared by many to be among the most attractive features in the construction and interior work of the new Greyhound bus station, recently opened to the public, is the work of Floyd Bros. Company, Inc., at 535 Flat Shoals avenue, S. E. Visitors to the new and handsome station on its opening day, and the many thousands who have passed through it since its opening, could not and cannot help but notice the excellent and really beautiful work in the lobby and around the ticket and information windows. Floyd Bros. installed ornate wainscoting in the most artistic fashion. All the center tops along the various counters and the large columns in the lobby are most artistically done. Many compliments have been paid the concern that executed this work. This station is among the finest in the entire country, and to have had a hand in making it attractive and beautiful, to say nothing of the durability of their work and materials, is most pleasing to the Atlanta cabinet makers.

The concern is also experts on weather-stripping and screen work, having executed many hundreds of such jobs in the city. They have installed hundreds of pretty booths in restaurants, and perhaps just as many attractively made kitchen cabinets, all over this section.

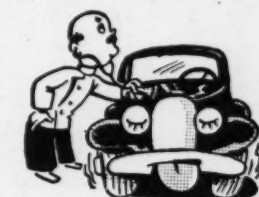

While they do—and have done for years past—a great variety of screen work, and installed their own make of kitchen cabinets, and much other work of this type, one of their proudest jobs is the work recently completed at the new bus station. The next time you have occasion to visit this station, note the excellence of their work there—note the perfection

Germans Blast London From Every Angle

authoritative quarters that Hitler might be attempting to deliver a "killing blow" to the Royal Air Force as a prelude to an invasion of the British Isles by sea.

In the face of the invasion threat, British bombers were reported to have blasted heavily Nazi barge concentrations along the French and Belgian channel coasts facing Britain. Along the Dover coast watchers saw flashes above the French coastline early today, indicating a violent British attack.

Transportation throughout greater London was a virtual standstill early today and millions of sleepy-eyed but stoically determined men, women and children drowsed in air-raid shelters.

The constant bursts of bombs, big and small, echoed over London, leaping flames marked spots where fires had been set by bombs and "Molotov breadbaskets" of incendiaries.

Never had London heard such fierce antiaircraft fire as the waves of raiders came in, hour after hour, from every side. They came mostly in small groups or even singly, flying 15,000 feet high—criss-crossing over the metropolis and dropping bombs in lacework pattern.

Nurses' Home Bombed.

The air ministry's spokesman said that the mass raids of the past 48 hours have proved that Germany's fighter strength is not comparable to her bomber strength.

Many fires were started and among the buildings damaged was a nurses' home attached to a hospital.

(In Berlin, Nazis said that the German air force "now controls the air over London" and Marshal Hermann W. Goering, directing the attack from France, announced jubilantly: "Now is the historic hour when, for the first time, the German Luftwaffe has struck at the heart of the enemy.")

Britons knew it was "all out" war from now on, and although hundreds of them mourned wives and children killed by Nazi bombs only eight or 10 hours before and great numbers were homeless, they accepted the challenge defiantly, demanding swift vengeance upon Berlin.

When the raiders broke through flaming walls of antiaircraft fire, rescue crews still were digging frantically in debris in the east end slums where whole blocks were bombed to tangled ruins during last night.

Bombs crashed into some of the same districts of the east end tenements where a heavy toll of life was taken Saturday night.

Again dead were digging through burning debris and in one block a high explosive bomb wrecked shops and injured many persons.

Along the Thames smoke and flames still stretched for a distance of 10 miles and again the German air force appeared to be aiming its bombs largely at the Thames docks, "lifeline" of this metropolis of 8,000,000 persons.

Pray For Planes.

The air raid sirens shrieked less than eight hours after the end of London's 12-hour rain of death and destruction, following a day of prayer in which millions of Britons followed their King and Queen to sand-bagged churches—to pray not for peace but for more planes with which to smash Hitler.

Within a few minutes, high explosive, incendiary and huge clusters of fire bombs were smashing down all over London and its suburbs.

The raiders swept in, flying high and far apart, in a 300-degree arc that all but engulfed the metropolis in the fury of the attack.

The new attack came before Londoners had an opportunity to know the full extent of the death and destruction of the previous night's "total war" from the air.

Britain's air force, battling the German raiders over London with

Bomb Misses Reporter 60 Feet; Still Stunned, He Phones Story

(Editor's Note: A member of the United Press London operating staff, G. E. Gregory, missed death by inches Sunday night when a German high-explosive bomb struck 20 yards from the front door of his home, almost wrecking the house. Still stunned, he hurried to a telephone and dictated his story.)

By G. E. GREGORY.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—(UP)—Hello, give me dictation, please. This is Gregory. They almost got me a few minutes ago. I'll tell you about it if I can get myself together.

I was sitting in my drawing room playing cards. Suddenly everything seemed to explode around me. I was covered with dust and my mouth was filled with plaster and rubble.

I rushed upstairs to see if my family was all right. No, none of us was hurt beyond a few scratches. But I'm still stunned and this may not sound just right.

(At this point Gregory, obviously suffering from shock, rambled incoherently for a few moments.)

My house was a shambles. The windows and door were blown in and the walls were cracked open.

A bomb, a high-explosive one, had exploded outside a church about 20 yards from my front door.

There were a few casualties and they got a gas-main. I've been working like a madman helping to smother the fire with sandbags.

There was only a small crater, but it must have been a powerful bomb because windows all along the street were shattered. I believe other bombs fell nearby.

I saw one house just now that was only a skeleton. The occupants, poor devils, must have been killed.

I've gotta get back now. You see, we've got 10 people in our house and we're trying to look after them. I hope I'm coherent. It was a terrific jolt.

grim determination, meanwhile, was reported to have been brought down by antiaircraft fire in the first few minutes of the attack, bringing to perhaps 142 the number of German planes forfeited by Hitler in 36 hours of his "total war" against London.

Other raiders were over south-east and south-west England, but it was London again that was the real target.

A careening double-deck bus rumbled through the streets of London—where the smoke of bomb-shattered homes and other buildings still rose—while passengers cheered the driver as he raced gamely on with the noise of bursting bombs and gunfire growing louder on all sides.

It was the start of the attack. Within a few minutes the fierce ripping sound of bombs crashing into wood was heard. A husband and his wife calmly placed their tow-headed child on the seat between them and covered her head with coats.

Child Unafraid. "Keep your head down, honey," said the mother. "No glass is going to hit you if I can help it."

But the child, not a bit worried, kept complaining: "I want to see mummy."

The Nazi raiders attempted to reach London at noon, but were turned back by British fighter planes over the Dover cliffs and along the Thames.

The counter-attack of London's antiaircraft guns was deafening, punctuated by the incessant bursts of high explosive and incendiary bombs.

Within 20 minutes after the start of the warning, two waves of Nazi raiders had swept over most of them directly above the heart of besieged London. Bombs fell with the staccato of artillery fire.

Slums Still Blazing.

As the raiders arrived fire fighting crews still were struggling with flames in the teeming east end slums.

Firemen, without sleep for 48 hours, still battled walls of flames in districts forming a semi-circle around London.

Mothers were killed outright before they had a chance to protect their children. Babies were swept from their carriages and hurled through the air by bomb concussions.

They were still trying to dig four men and a girl from the wreckage of a small house in east London when sirens screamed their warning.

The rescuers continued tugging at timbers and hurling them into the street.

"We heard the girl calling for water this morning and seemed to catch the voices of one or two of

"America Gives to Jesse Hall, Private, Co. F 328th Inf. 82nd Div., the Acclamation of Humanity."—Woodrow Wilson

To the People of Georgia:

I was born and reared on a farm in Talbot County, Georgia, the son of a tenant farmer. I fought in several major battles in the World War and lost my left arm in the Argonne Forest.

Studied law at the University of Georgia, practiced law for past 18 years. Member Atlanta and Georgia Bar Associations.

More than 104,000 voters cast their ballots for me for Secretary of State in 1932.

If elected, I will conduct the affairs of the office according to law and will refrain from interfering with or criticizing other State Officials.

Shall Georgia's Legislature

Overrule the Supreme Court?

There is a law in the State of Georgia that is expressly designed to protect the rights of private property owners. That law states that no private property can be condemned for any purpose other than public benefit... and then only by authority of the State Legislature. The Supreme Court of Georgia recently ruled that gasoline pipe line companies, under this existing law, do not possess this power of property condemnation. The U. S. Courts have held likewise.

What Happens Now?

Balked by the Supreme Court, turned down again on a second hearing, losing out in the United States Courts, the gasoline pipe line interests will unquestionably carry their plea to your Georgia State Legislature.

They will undoubtedly ask your representatives and senators to make them an outright gift of this power to condemn private property and to go under your public highways wherever they wish.

The Cost to You

If they should succeed in their quest for these powers, and gasoline pipe lines gain a foothold in Georgia, here are a few of the results every Georgia citizen can expect:

1. Tremendous losses in school taxes from railroads, thus shortening school term, and slowing up teachers' salaries.
2. Losses in other county, municipal, and state taxes.
3. More than 2,300 railroad employees and an unpredictable number of affiliated workers thrown out of jobs.
4. Loss of revenue to the ports of Savannah and Brunswick.
5. Loss in trade of millions of dollars to Georgia merchants.
6. Losses in purchases made by railroads in the state.
7. Imperilment of Georgia's $540,000 annual rental from its W. & A. Railroad.
8. Devaluation of railroad stocks held in endowment funds of numerous Georgia educational, charitable and religious institutions.
9. Subjection of farms, homes, highways, and public buildings to the hazard of unregulated gasoline pipe line transportation and the constant danger of explosions.

What Would You Gain?

NOTHING! You could buy gasoline no cheaper... there would be no reduction in the number of gasoline trucks on the highways... the taxes the gasoline pipe lines would pay would be insignificant in comparison with the railroad and other tax values they would destroy...

WHY, then, should your State Legislature give any pipe line company the powers it can't secure from the courts of Georgia under existing laws?

WHY should you, as tax-payers, as well-informed and public-minded citizens, permit your representatives and senators to give these non-resident gasoline interests the legal right to feather their financial nests at your expense and at the expense of your state?

USE your influence, both before and after the coming state election, to see that the Legislature does not grant gasoline pipe line interests the valuable and extraordinary privileges they seek, of taking private property for their own use, without the owners' consent.

Let your legislative candidates, and all your friends, know how you stand... AND DO IT NOW!

Nazis, Opponents Fight in the Hague

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 8.—(P) via Berlin—A street battle at The Hague between Dutch Nazis and their opponents, in which one person was killed and a number injured, was disclosed tonight with dismissal of The Hague police chief, E. Van Der Mey.

The official German version of the incident said that about 200 members of the Dutch Nazi youth organization, accompanied by some members of the Dutch version of Nazi storm troopers, were parading when a cyclist rode into the procession "with provocative intent" and a fight resulted.

U. S. Census Takers Missed Only 1 in 75, Poll Reveals

1.4 Per Cent in Institute's Cross-Section Omitted, Making Only 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 Believed To Have Been Skipped.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 8.—Ever since the first United States census was conducted in 1790 statisticians have debated the question: "How accurate is the census?" In recent years statisticians have estimated that Uncle Sam's census-takers might have missed from 5 to 10 per cent of the total population.

But a new study conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion in all parts of the United States indicates for the first time in history how good a job has been done.

At regular intervals since the early days of the census last April the Institute has asked a carefully selected cross-section of the American public: "Has a government census-taker called at your home and obtained the information for the government about you?"

The Gallup Poll

With the great job of census-taking virtually completed the Institute survey indicates that less than one person in seventy-five—actually 1.4 per cent in the Institute's cross-section—were missed.

When this figure is applied to the estimated census totals for the United States, the indications are that Uncle Sam's enumerators missed only from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 persons. While a variable of such size might be enough to boost several American cities into the 100,000 or 500,000 population groups, statisticians regard it as a remarkably small error in an enterprise as far-reaching and difficult as the United States census.

Nor were census omissions concentrated in any particular areas or localities, the Institute's study indicates. Such oversights as were revealed were distributed through all sections of the country, and in urban as well as rural areas.

"We've been away" . . . "nobody ever comes out this way" . . . "We just didn't see a census-man out our way" . . . these are the explanations given by typical persons who say they were missed by the census-takers.

Interestingly enough, a comparatively large number of persons (about 4 per cent) said they believed they had been missed by census enumerators, but Institute check-backs revealed that in a majority of these instances other members of the family had given the necessary information to government canvassers.

Another and final check on the census will be made shortly by the Institute.

DON'T BE FOOLED--- Here's What Happened!

In an effort to confuse the voters of Fulton County about the appointment and qualifications of Judge A. L. (Jack) Etheridge, candidate to succeed himself as a Judge of Fulton Superior Court, his opponent has, in printed circulars and otherwise, asked the question:

"What Happened at 3:00 A. M. in a Hotel Apartment?"

thus tending to create the unfair and unfounded impression that there was something sinister and unholy in connection with the appointment.

Because he is above engaging in a purely political controversy with a disappointed rival, who frankly admits that his principal complaint is that the appointment was not tendered to him, Judge Etheridge has not seen fit to answer in detail the unfounded insinuations and personal reflections contained in the circular.

But the question has been asked, and the undersigned practicing attorneys, being familiar with Judge Etheridge's record of honesty, fairness and devotion to duty during the fourteen years that he has been a Judge in this County, and believing that this undignified and regrettable effort at character assassination ought not to go unanswered, have investigated the facts and state:

HERE IS WHAT HAPPENED.

Judge Etheridge was at home with his family at 8:30 o'clock in the evening when a telephone call came informing him that he had been selected to fill the vacancy on the Superior Court and inviting him to come to the apartment of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia, the highest judicial officer of the State, in the Atlanta Biltmore Hotel, to be sworn in.

It was stated that the Governor was required to leave the city the next day on official business, and that it was considered desirable that the appointment be concluded so as not to delay further the functioning of the court, and so as not to encourage others who were actively soliciting the position for themselves.

The appointment came to Judge Etheridge as a recognition of his long and distinguished record as a Judge. It was not the privilege of Judge Etheridge to fix the time or place for being sworn in. Accompanied by his wife and his three children, he answered the summons and went to take the oath of office. Any other person, in similar circumstances, would have done the same thing.

The Governor arrived from a radio engagement about an hour later. He immediately stated to Judge Etheridge that he had made up his mind to appoint him to the judgeship and desired that he be sworn in that evening. Before doing this, however, he desired to select a successor to Judge Etheridge on the Civil Court. Judge Etheridge therefore held himself in readiness awaiting the Governor's convenience, and the entire delay was occasioned by the efforts of the Governor to satisfy himself with reference to the appointment of a successor to the Civil Court, and to procure the acceptance of that appointment by the appointee—a proceeding in which Judge Etheridge took no part and concerning which he had no interest.

HERE'S WHO WERE THERE

When the Governor had finally concluded as to the appointment of a successor and secured the acceptance, both of the appointees were sworn in to their respective offices, in the presence of the Governor, the Chief Justice, the Governor's Secretary, who had custody of the oath-book, his wife and a visitor in his home; two Judges of the Fulton Superior Court; two Judges of the Civil Court of Fulton County; the wife and daughter of Judge Etheridge's successor; a newspaper reporter and photographer, and Judge Etheridge's wife, his twin sons age thirteen years, and his daughter, age fifteen years.

These people—and these people only—attended the ceremonies. They were friends and judicial associates of Judge Etheridge, their wives and their children. They came to see this man of ability and unimpeachable integrity receive a promotion to which his long and distinguished service on the bench entitled him.

THOSE ARE THE FACTS

Those facts are well known to Judge Hathcock and were known to him when he entered this campaign. HE HAS HIMSELF ADMITTED THAT HE WAS PREPARING, EVEN BEFORE THE BURIAL OF JUDGE THOMAS, TO APPLY TO THE SAME GOVERNOR HE NOW CRITICIZES FOR THE APPOINTMENT THAT WENT TO JUDGE ETHERIDGE.

Judge Etheridge's opponent now holds judicial office, and his term of office has several years to run. He has not relinquished that position. We feel that it is particularly unfortunate that one holding judicial office should indulge in unfair and unseemly attempts at "mud-slinging," which we believe in his calmer moments he will regret.

The facts set forth in this advertisement were generally known to the lawyers of Fulton County when they voted in their recent Bar Association poll—AT A RATIO OF NINE TO ONE—that Judge Etheridge is better qualified than his opponent to hold the office of Judge of the Superior Court. There is nothing in those facts to justify insinuation that the appointment was made at a wild, undignified gathering and nothing in them to reflect upon the character, ability or fitness for office of one who has lived and labored humbly and diligently and in the fear of God, and whose personal and public reputation are above reproach.

Judge Etheridge has long been active in religious and civic affairs. He is Chairman of the Board of Deacons and a Bible Teacher at the North Avenue Presbyterian Church. He has taken an active interest in Boy Scout work.

ONE WEEK MORE

Just one week more...and our building becomes a gleaming reality. Only a few short months from the thud of the pile driver to the capping stone on the parapet wall. In between these physical limitations and within a short time an additional 100,000 square feet for the service of Atlanta has been realized.

A kaleidoscope of services are contained within these boundaries:

Six new selling floors... modern fluorescent lighting, never before used as general illumination in any plant... new shipping and receiving departments... additional freight elevators for the easy transportation of thousands,—yes, millions of articles in and out of this store.

All of these things are bound up in the new beauty of Rich's... subtle coloring, open vistas, broad aisles, soft velvet glow of an atmosphere that simulates daylight... all these practicabilities and all these beauties are synchronized for your immediate use.

Just one week more... then this re-created Rich's will be presented to You.

Only Person in Hollywood Who Dares Criticize, Advise Muni's Acting Is His Wife

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 8.—Paul Muni kisses stock girl Dorothy Dearing. "Hold her closer," commands Director Irving Pichel. "How about the Hays office—and my wife?" says Muni. "I'm not jealous," replies Mrs. Muni, from the sidelines of the "Hudson's Bay" set at Twentieth Century-Fox. "If it were a serious love scene, I'd go away," the attractive Mrs. Muni tells me. "I don't mind myself, but it isn't fair to Paul—or the girl."

There is a blackboard on the set. "Is your husband pulling a John Barrymore?" I tease Mrs. Muni. She protests long and loudly. "He has sung a French song, and he doesn't speak French, so—" Muni is singing for the first time in his movie career. I am surprised at the quality of his deep baritone voice. "But that's how he started," his wife tells me. "He began as a song and dance man at the Yiddish theater in New York. That's how we met. Even today we go into our dance at the slightest provocation."

Mrs. Muni gave up her acting career when she married Paul 19 years ago. "I now have a vicarious career—watching my husband work." She does more than watch; she is his audience and adviser. At the end of each scene she tells him what she thought of it—and how it could be bettered. "You see," she adds, "I don't play tennis. I don't play bridge. I'm interested only in my husband."

"Will you ever return to acting?" I asked Mrs. Muni. "I hope so—but not just now. I'm in the awkward stage again. I'm too old for young lady roles. And too young for character parts." Mrs. Muni tells me that Paul "wants to do another play just as soon as the right one comes along. The dearest hope of my life," she concludes, "is to do mother play with Paul." It would be a nice reward for her devotion to Muni and his career.

The Daughter Assumes Role Of Martyr

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: We are prone to forget it sometimes but usually there are sides to a question. For instance, recently there was a letter in your column from a man complaining that his wife had the full responsibility for her mother while seven brothers and their wives went scot free. You called it outrageous. Let me defend the seven brothers.

In this case the mother is an invalid unable to visit her children who live some distance from the old home where mother lives with daughter. When the children go to visit mother she begs them to stay for a meal. During the meal daughter gives advice and criticism of the way the visitors are bringing up their children. She also discusses the cost of food and extra amount necessary to feed guests, as well as the extra work entailed. If the visitor happens to be wearing a new dress the point is made that the price of it would buy so much medicine and food. Yet daughter's clothes are the best in the crowd.

No visitor is permitted to assist with the work. Daughter assumes the role of martyr, doing everything—even to getting the glass of water for mother. Each visitor leaves insulted, hurt to the core as well as humiliated because not able to help financially and not permitted to help physically, made to feel unwelcome, yet criticized for not coming often. You see there are two sides.

AN IN-LAW.

Answer: Friend, no doubt there are two sides to every question, but wonder if the other side to this particular question is stated in your letter? If so, I miss the point. Hardly can we blame the burdened daughter for putting on martyr airs with in-laws who come and visit, eat free meals at her expense, yet say they cannot contribute to mother's support. She is a martyr.

Hardly can we blame her when a big crowd of sisters and brothers rotate in visits, (staying for meals), increasing the work and the size of the grocery bills. Why couldn't the visitors come with a picnic lunch, packed, ready to be eaten, a lunch that would be a party for the housekeeper and invalid and a contribution from the impetuous ones who cannot afford to contribute cash. Why could they not give notice in advance saying they are arriving (with basket), on certain day and insist that no preparation should be made by the housekeeper?

A woman's kitchen and pantry are the intimate places of her home and you can always mark it down the only people she willingly admits to these sanctuaries are those she feels friendly to, and those she desires to be intimate with. Under that head would not be the wives of brothers who come empty handed to spend the day and ride away full, until another visiting day rolls around.

Bad taste for daughter to criticize her guests, harp on price of food and trouble of entertaining. Worse to criticize manner of bringing up children. But most of us in daughter's place would be sore and most of us would vent

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Ann Sheridan, Warner Brothers' star, matches her nail polish to her dresses. The schoolgirl will need only the campus twin polishes, for they will blend with her entire wardrobe, from sportsters to evening formals.

Giddy Nail Polishes Accent College Girl's Campus Togs

By WINIFRED WARE.

Back-to-School is the September slogan—which means that fashions will be foremost in the minds of 'teen-age girls. They'll have their fill this season of gay colors and unusual combinations, from informal comfy sports models in tweeds and plaids to the most sophisticated evening frocks.

And while selecting a campus wardrobe the college girl will not neglect her cosmetics. This fashion-minded, modern miss will realize the importance of matching makeup from hair to toenails she'll be just right.

The school girl who would rate high in the fashion lineup this fall knows what color will do for her. Regardless of the bright or somber tone of her ensemble, she'll highlight it with red. Her lipstick, rouge and nail polish will be reds that blend harmoniously with her costume. Red is a color pickup and in every case will carry through to the finger-tips.

You'd think with all the new reds introduced during the spring and summer that there'd be no other red variations left, but the cosmetics never stop experimenting and one firm that strives to keep your hands and nails glamorous, has just presented two shades of polish sure to make a hit with the school and college girl.

The first of this pair of campus twins is as giddy as a football date. It's the clear ringing red that highlights skintones—no color or sissy, but a deep sophisticated shade that gives hands that "going-places" look. It's perfect to complement browns, naturals and school book greens. The second, an electric red, will complete the co-ed's nail-tip wardrobe. A most flattering of reds with a blue-flame undertone, it accents blackberry, maroon, purple-toned browns. It's smooth with pastel evening frocks and smoother yet with black.

Easy to apply evenly and smoothly, it has the desired glossy finish when dried.

Ears Taken In While You Wait

Protein Foods Head Diet List

By Ida Jean Kain.

If you were cast on a desert island where there was nothing to eat you might not reduce as fast as you would at home within reach of a good, juicy steak!

In starvation, your system rapidly cuts down on the number of calories it requires to keep going. You may use 30 per cent less normally! On the other hand, the drop in your metabolism may be so slight on a low calorie diet that the deficit is likely to be greater than in actual starvation!

Of course, you have no intention of going entirely without food—but it should be comforting to know that you can lose weight faster by eating within your reducing requirements.

You may also find it helpful to know that you can reduce faster on certain foods than on others. These are the foods with a high specific dynamic action which stimulate the burning of fat in the body and help you to lose weight. Protein heads this list.

There are other advantages to the high-protein diet. Low-calorie meals which are comparatively high in protein are more satisfying than other diets. You feel better fed when you have meat or eggs or cheese and milk in a meal. These meals are not only satisfying, but they also provide the body with the building blocks of many a reducer.

Another interesting but not as well known fact is that a high protein intake helps to prevent water retention, the humpback of many a reducer. If on a low calorie diet you fail to lose weight because your tissues are storing water, it would be well to increase the protein in the menu.

There are a few cases, such as gout and cardiovascular-renal disease, in which it is inadvisable to increase the protein. But in normal cases the protein content of the reducing diet may be as high as 75 to 100 grams daily. Since grams do not mean much to the layman, here is the list of foods which total 75 grams of protein, and which, included in the daily diet, will help you to lose weight faster.

This list of foods contains about 800 calories. By adding two fresh fruits and a small amount of butter you have an adequate reducing diet of about 1,000 calories.

Your Basic Dress for Fall Has Dart-Fitted Waistline

By Barbara Bell.

Smart, slim and sophisticated, this frock is the basic type that makes up beautifully in either silk or wool, and transforms you into a pretty part of the fall picture the minute you put it on. The secret of its flattering line is very simple—the trick is done by long darts at the waistline, tucks on the shoulders, and inside tucks on the front of the skirt. Thus you see, it is competent to round you out where desirable, and slim you in at the proper areas.

This design (No. 1213) has the new long look, breaking into unexpected fullness just below the hipline. Moire, faille, flat crepe and spun rayon are smart choices for this.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1213 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 (34) requires 43-8 yards of 39-inch material (short sleeves) or 4 3/4 yards (long sleeves).

Pattern No. 1213 can be purchased for fifteen cents. Please remit in coins or stamps (coins preferred), giving your name, address, pattern number and size. Mail your orders to Barbara Bell Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

Mother: "We're going to try a new plan which I think you will like. Lie down here and rest for a little while before dinner and I'll see if I can find some soft music for you on the radio."

Mother: "I can't see why Jean doesn't eat. She certainly plays hard enough to create an appetite. She didn't even want to leave her play long enough to come to dinner."

A short rest before meal time will do wonders for the underweight child.

MY DAY: NYA Boys Lunch At Hyde Park

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK.—We had a picnic lunch yesterday for the second group of boys from the Federal Youth Administration, National Youth Administration project. These boys are learning masonry work, stone carving and even the making of their own tools.

I did not have a great deal to show them, but out on my porch, they looked with a great deal of interest at the big stone fireplace which I have for broiling.

After a swim and lunch and a visit to the petting shop, where they were interested in the making of salad bowls and pepper articles, I took them over to see the new library. They were much interested in the stone used in that building. The ship models and the other collections, which can be seen at present, though they are not as yet arranged, seemed to interest them also. They have a great appreciation for anything which is handmade and seemed a group of young people with keen and varied interests.

I hope they enjoyed my lunch as much as I did the one they gave us the day that Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr. and I visited them.

I induced Mrs. Morgenthau to drive up from Fishkill to be with us today and we talked over various plans, for she and I are to meet in New York city today. It is most satisfactory to do anything with her, for she has such a quick grasp of any situation and an esthetic and cultured appreciation of many things which is not given to us all.

There was some little accumulation of mail and a number of things to be gone over and arranged. Christmas shopping must begin and I am glad to say I went over all my lists yesterday and am able to start with a very well planned list of what must be bought in the course of the next few weeks.

You will probably say that it is early to be planning Christmas shopping, but I am rather horrified at not having more laid aside and marked for this busiest of seasons. From now on it is going to be busier and busier, and we have learned that preparation well in advance makes it possible to enjoy the Christmas spirit.

I write you a little about the war because it seems to me that you must feel as I do, that it is hard to free your mind of the news which comes over the radio and which screams at you on the front page of every paper. The horror grows worse and the feeling that you never know quite what is happening, or may happen, is very hard to bear.

The weight of suffering in the world is so great one can't be happy these days, but at least I think, it is incumbent upon all of us to be grateful for our lot and show it by as much cheerfulness and willingness to give to others, as we possibly can.

Up-to-the-Minute Flashes On Millinery Interpretations

A Farewell to Frou-frou. A farewell to frou-frou is shown in the new fall hats just making their appearance on the fashion horizon. In its place is sheer drama. Hats to be worn with an air. Hats pleasing and patriotic and imaginative. A good many of the women who wear them will look like streamlined heroines of the history of the Americas... a trend which will probably start a rash of "name the person and the period" quiz games based on the bonnets seen in smart spots.

Starting with the Indians and coming down through the plantation days of the deep south to the cowboy hats of our own time, United States history provides inspiration for many of the new styles. In addition there is the influence of Central and South America, seen in a good many high style hats. This rediscovery of the Western Hemisphere has produced hitherto unrealized beauties of color and line, making the season's bonnets particularly distinctive.

Influence of the War. Influence of the war is very rarely shown in obvious use of the military motif. Instead, the influence is subtler and deeper than that, and expressed in many ways. In addition to the American inspiration, there is the trend toward soberer colors, perhaps an outward expression of soberer thinking, toward monotonous or two-tones in millinery, which allows for intriguing use of line and detail. Self-trimmed hats, or hats trimmed in self-color. Big brims faced with a contrasting color. Small dark hats with a brilliant feather providing the single touch of color. The trend toward hats that are functional and at the same time immensely flattering. Hats that go to a gal's head and not in her eye. Less chi-chi and more chic.

In General. There are rich and wonderful new colors in felts and velvets, in corduroy and broadcloth. Exciting new browns, often combined with black. New beiges and grays. Deep-keyed greens and brilliant reds, there are many new silhouettes from which to choose. The pompadour hat, of course, in its many forms from skullcap to off-face brim. Then there are the really huge brims, some profile, some dipping over one eye and lifted at the sides, some flaring out at each side from an exposed hairline, all very dashing. The forward movement is seen in the new postillions, and in hats with front emphasis combined with firmness of fit at crown. Berets and turbans, strictly impartial, partake of both forward and backward movement. You pay your money and you take your choice.

Campus Craniums. This year's crop of co-eds are as conscious of what they're going to put on their craniums as in them, this fall. College girls always want (and a large order it is, too!) simplicity, becomingness, casualness and comfort—combined with line distinctive enough to start a stir. All of which adds up to the hats they're picking for campus this autumn... a far cry from the old days when a girl put on last year's battered riding hat for school wear. Pert jockey or baseball caps lend impudent charm to campus tweeds. The park-pipe turns up in glowing corduroys. Minuscule beanies are unexpected dots of color to set off and restrain neat shining locks.

For experimental psychology (off-campus variety) there's dating drama in small black velvet pompadour calots with sophisticated veils, bonnets that give a straight-from-a-daguerreotype air to the most modern miss, and huge flaring brims of all varieties to frame young faces. For those extra special weekends, the new fur hats, supple and lovely as felt, are being demanded from dating parents.

They're as Smart as They Look. This sudden hat-consciousness of college girls has come about not only because this year's styles fill all their specifications, but also because college men recently have been stating in no uncertain terms their preference for well-hatted dates. And after all, gals with sense enough to pass college boards are too smart to let any grass grow under their feet in scurrying to headcover!

Common Fault Now May Be Corrected

By Dr. William Brady.

I am at a loss to explain it, but I always assume that a fellow with outstanding ears is pugnacious, ill-tempered and of a mean disposition, and this in spite of the fact that the fellows with outstanding ears I have known were generally good natured, kindly and altogether likeable guys. How do we get that way?

If you have outstanding ears and doubt that you are endowed with the right personality to compensate for the effect on P. A. it is comparatively simple to have the fault corrected.

Perhaps any good doctor could do the operation, but not every doctor knows the many special maneuvers or twists of the wrist which the sculptural or "plastic" surgeon employs to insure perfect healing after such corrective operations. In the present backward state of practice it is not quite "ethical" for the doctor who limits his practice to sculptural or plastic or reconstructive surgery to announce the fact on his office door. There the oculist, the nose and throat specialist, the general surgeon, the dermatologist and a dozen other kinds of specialists have the advantage of him, for they can and do inform the public that their practice is limited to this or that field. So, in order to find a reliable plastic or sculptural surgeon, you must ask your doctor to recommend one for you, or else you may write to me and I'll name one as near as I can find on my list.

Outstanding ears may be corrected under local anesthesia in the sculptural surgeon's office. It looks a simple twist of the wrist, but I don't know the half of it. He first injects a local anesthetic, waits until sensation is absent, then makes an incision along the line where the ear and side of head meet. He neatly removes an elliptical piece of skin and ear cartilage from behind each ear according to exact measurements, and sutures the skin margins together by interrupted silk sutures. This gives permanent correction, for removal of the portion of cartilage breaks the spring effect in the auricle which makes the ears stand out. Otherwise the auricle would protrude again before long. There remains a thin linear scar located in the ear and side of head, where it is virtually invisible. The sutures are removed about nine days after the operation.

Ears taken in while you wait! So it seems to the patient or to the onlooker. But as I said, it is not quite so simple as that in fact; it is only the special skill of the surgeon that makes it seem simple.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Quaint Credulity. I have tried two different treatments guaranteed by specialists to cure catarrh, and neither did any good. (H. T.)

Answer—Of course no "specialist" can guarantee a remedy to cure anything. No reputable physician would pretend to do so. What you mean by "catarrh" I cannot imagine. Why not stop the nonsense and consult a physician—leave it to the doctor to determine what is the matter; your part is simply to tell the doctor what your complaint is, not to try to diagnose your trouble for him.

Salt Keeps You Flabby. Battle in our house over the use of salt. A says you advise that salt favors retention of water in the tissues and interferes with reduction. B says it is just the other way around, that you teach that stout people need more salt. (C. E. E.)

Answer—B buys the candy. "Too much salt tends to keep the body tissues waterlogged, flabby." It is well for the plethoric, whether blood pressure is high, low or normal, to add as little salt as possible to food.

Tiny Tots To Return Joyously To Service Guild Nursery

• • • UNLIKE THE MAJORITY of students whose return to school is tempered with reluctance, the tiny tots entering the Service Guild Nursery school are thrilled that once again they will be privileged to enjoy curricular activities planned for their special pleasure.

The Service Guild, you know, is an educational project sponsored co-operatively by the Service Guild and the Jewish Educational Alliance. Now entering its third year, the school is concerned with the guidance and direction of approximately 22 children and their parents yearly. The staff boasts a trained teacher who has an M. A. degree in nursery education to her credit, as well as competent volunteer assistants from the Service Guild, a nurse, a consulting pediatrician and a dentist. The school receives the general supervision of the executive director of the Jewish Educational Alliance.

Little toddlers of two and "old-timers" of three and four anticipate with eagerness the joy of playing with equipment skillfully designed for pleasure, muscular activity, creative thinking and social interplay.

The nursery school, however, is not to be considered merely a rendezvous for child's play. The four-year-old husky standing by the swing is quite unaware when he says to a tiny cunny, "You push me, then I'll push you," that he has come a long way from his "hit-and-snap" performance of last year. He has learned that one can accomplish more—and be happier—by sharing, and by taking turns. He is learning to live democratically even at so tender an age.

Sally is privileged to announce today that several openings at the school are available for new children, who are requested to register as soon as possible. Further information may be obtained by phoning Main 2171.

• • • AT THE RUSH breakfast given Wednesday by the Alpha Omicron Pi Alumnae all the members carried dainty white linen handkerchiefs with the initials of their sorority embroidered in red in one corner—mementoes of the formal banquet which climaxed the three-day convention of the southern district at the Biltmore hotel last week.

BETTER VISION GREATER PLEASURE

Good vision doesn't mean merely a better score on a bridge game, though that's part of it. It means a more enjoyable game—cards seen quickly and easily, both in the hand and on the table. It means coming home at night fresh and unexhausted—without the headache and tiredness that dog the home-going footsteps of those whose eyes have had to strain hard to see.

Safe seeing is the result of good eyesight and good light. Be sure you have both: eyesight with any defect corrected; and good light on every eye task. Better vision means happier living.

For greater comfort and better vision, have a thorough eye examination made regularly. For appointment, WA. 1355.

Miss Williams and Mr. Epes Wed at Jacksonville Rites

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 8.—Mr. and Mrs. Telgham Goldsborough Williams announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Lee Williams, to Samuel C. Epes, of Richmond, Va., son of Mr. and Mrs. Travis H. Epes.

The ceremony was solemnized September 5 at 5:30 o'clock at St. John's Episcopal church. The date of the marriage was chosen because it marked the wedding anniversary of the bride's parents, Rev. Newton Middleton performed the impressive ceremony.

The lovely bride was given in marriage by her father and they were met at the altar by the groom and the bride's brother, Telgham Goldsborough Williams Jr., who was best man.

The bride's matron of honor and only attendant was her aunt, Mrs. Robert E. Hodgson, of Atlanta.

The altar of the church was beautifully decorated with a background of ferns interspersed with arrangements of white gladioli and white asters.

The bride chose for her wedding gown a fall model of soldier blue crepe. Her only ornament was a diamond necklace that belonged to her paternal grandmother, the late Mrs. James C. Williams, of Atlanta.

Immediately following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Williams entertained at a buffet supper at their beach home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wise, of Jacksonville, aunt and uncle of the bride, assisted.

The out-of-town guests included Mrs. Travis H. Epes and Miss Mary Anne Epes, of Richmond, Va., mother and sister of the groom, and Mrs. M. A. Lindsey, grandmother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Hodgson Jr., all of Atlanta.

Personals

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
TESTED AND APPROVED BY THE
MCCORMICK CONSUMER BOARD

|                          |                          |
|--------------------------|--------------------------|
| 1/2 cup shortening       | 2 eggs                   |
| 1 cup sugar              | 2 cups cake flour        |
| 2 tps. McCormick vanilla | 2 1/2 tps. baking powder |
| 1/2 cup milk             | 1/2 cup salt             |

Cream shortening, sugar, vanilla and salt together. Beat in eggs one at a time. Sift flour and baking powder and add alternately with milk to creamed mixture. Pour into 2 well greased 8-inch layer pans. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) for 25 minutes.

NOTE: Better ingredients mean better results with any recipe. Use McCormick's rich, pure, genuine vanilla—it's "top" for fine flavoring quality. Ask your grocer for McCormick's Tea, Spices and Extracts.

Miss Evelyn Azar Marries Charles Jabaley Jr. at Church

At a quiet ceremony taking place yesterday at 5 o'clock at Immaculate Conception church, Miss Evelyn Azar, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Azar, became the bride of Charles Jabaley Jr., of LaGrange. Rev. J. R. Smith performed the marriage in the presence of a small group of friends and relatives of the couple.

Miss Rosina Asmire, the organist, presented a musical program. Gracing the altar were urns containing arrangements of white roses placed against a background of palms and ferns. Flanking the floral arrangements were cathedral candelabra holding burning white tapers.

Mrs. John J. Maloff was the bride's matron of honor and only attendant. She was stylishly gowned in an ante bellum model of peach colored taffeta, fashioned with a bouffant skirt trimmed with white colored velvet. Gracing the skirt was a cluster of flowers tied with a velvet bow. She wore an old-fashioned bonnet of matching taffeta.

The bride and groom left after the ceremony for a wedding trip to Miami, Fla., and upon their return they will reside in LaGrange. The bride chose for traveling black crepe gown styled with lace bodice. Completing her costume were black accessories.

Miss Downs Weds William Brake.

GRAYSON, Ga., Sept. 8.—The marriage of Miss Jeanette Downs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Downs, to William Brake, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Brake, of Arnoldsville, was solemnized August 31 at the Methodist parsonage at Loganville by Rev. A. L. Gueat.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Catherine Foster, of Monroe. The best man was Robert Livsey, of Grayson.

The bride graduated from Grayson high school and later attended Young Harris College.

The groom graduated from Sparta High School and is a graduate of Young Harris College and the University of Georgia. He has taught for the past three years in the Sparta high school.

After a honeymoon the couple will reside in Macon, where the groom will teach English in the Lanier High School for Boys.

Crackers Beat Pebs in First, 6-4, Lose Second, 4-1, as Season Ends

BY JACK TROY

A Little Pressure For the first time in five years, the American League knows what it is like to have pressure going down the stretch.

Over in the National, where they know all about pressure, the Reds are having a merry time. They are not exactly in a position to coast, baseball being the uncertain game that it is, but they are the proverbial mile in front.

Know what it probably means? Well, it means that the Redlegs likely will be national heroes a little later on when they win the World Series.

You hear it said the Reds secretly may be squirming because it looks as if the Yankees might slip in and win the American league pennant, after all.

But don't you believe it. If the Yankees do win the junior loop pennant, they'll be mighty lucky. And they will have done it the hardest sort of way.

But forget the Yankees. Suppose the Tigers nose out the offensive Indians, the cry babies or half-Vitts as they are called? The Tigers will be pretty whipped down, too, in a wild-eyed race.

And if the Indians should win—well, for the Nationals it would be perfect. The Reds would take them, Feller and all.

It would be a great thing for the Reds to win a world series. The Cincinnati fans are as loyal as any fans anywhere. They are more loyal than most fans, inasmuch as they stuck with the Reds until the bitter end last season. Actually, the supporters were still hoping in the final game.

It would be ideal for the Reds to catch the Yanks again. If not, the Yanks, then the Tigers or Indians. The National league is in the driver's seat this time. And knows it.

Katz Captures Four-Hit Tilt For Travelers

Kerksick Wins Opener After Going to Relief of Larry Miller.

Atlanta's Crackers finished the regular Southern League season here Sunday afternoon, dividing a twin-bill with the Little Rock Pebbles, 6-4, in the opener, but dropped the nightcap, 4-1.

Wayman Kerksick received credit for the Cracker victory in the first game, relieving Larry Miller, Atlanta starter, in the seventh inning. Bob Katz, Pebble right-hander, bested Emile Lochbaum in the final contest.

Little Rock scored first in the opener, pushing across a run in the fourth inning. LeRoy Schalk singled and stole. Will Duke walked and Lupien's single tallied Schalk. Three more Peb tallies came across in the fifth. Yount singled and scored on Sieling's double to center. Jim Prendergast sacrificed and Irwin walked. Dwyer singled and Sieling tallied, with Irwin going to third. Schalk grounded out, short to first, and Irwin came across.

TWO IN FIFTH. The Crackers brought two unearned runs over in the fifth. Dewey Williams, batting for Sol Ferrara, walked. Larry Miller grounded to third and when Tommy Irwin threw wild to first, Williams scored and Miller traveled to third. Miller crossed the plate on Alf Anderson's fly to right field.

Atlanta broke loose in the seventh to tie the count. Mailho opened with a single and Tom Hefey followed suit, sending Emil to third. Hill forced Hefey at second and Mailho tallied. Glock walked and Bates doubled, scoring Hill, but Glock was caught at the plate by a relay from Schalk to Catcher Rensa.

Two runs in the eighth cinched the game for Atlanta. Anderson opened with a single and Tom Hefey followed suit, sending Emil to third. Hill forced Hefey at second and Mailho tallied. Glock walked and Bates doubled, scoring Hill, but Glock was caught at the plate by a relay from Schalk to Catcher Rensa.

Glock walked and went to third on Bates' single with one away. Ferrara popped to short left and Sieling dropped the ball, allowing Glock to score.

YOUNT HOMERS.

The Pebs scored two in the third on Bill Yount's homer over the right field signs and a base on balls, coupled with two singles. The sixth and seventh innings also brought across one run for the Pebbles. Lochbaum hit a wild streak in the sixth and walked three straight men, forcing across Joe Dwyer, who had singled.

Two singles and a sacrifice sent across the final Peb tally in the seventh.

Atlanta will enjoy an off-day today and then move into Memphis for the opening of the Shaugnessy play-off which opens Tuesday night. Herman Besse, Crackers southpaw, is scheduled to face the Chicks in the opener.

Hear Helen Douglas Mankin Tonight--WGST--6 P.M.

Whatta Mann!

There's an old line which insists that the proof of the pudding is in the eating. There's no denying it.

The success of a baseball organization is measured by the patronage. That being true, it is interesting to note what a grand job Earl Mann has done as president of the Atlanta baseball corporation since 1935.

During Mann's six years, the Atlanta club has won three pennants and finished second, third and fourth. There has not been a finish out of the first division. Atlanta has had remarkable attendance since 1935. It wasn't so hot for a span of almost 10 years before that, but it has been wonderful since Mann has been at the helm.

When you think of Atlanta as a town of 300,000 folks and examine Cracker attendance records, you realize the men who hired Mann really had something there. Here is Cracker attendance, paid and gross, by years. Paid includes play-offs and Dixie series, and the 1940 figures do not include yesterday's double-header—

| Year         | Paid             | Gross            |
|--------------|------------------|------------------|
| 1935         | 387,756          | 485,163          |
| 1936         | 310,117          | 425,119          |
| 1937         | 292,291          | 406,270          |
| 1938         | 275,234          | 395,337          |
| 1939         | 249,605          | 359,989          |
| 1940         | 190,387          | 276,175          |
| Total | 1,705,390 | 2,348,053 |

The Atlanta club has averaged out-drawing the population by a fair margin. You couldn't ask for more.

Buck, Himself

Buck Murphy, Tech's great blocking back, of last year, dropped in at practice with his brother the other afternoon and Lou Bush, Memphis second baseman who coaches football in the winter time, turned and said, "Who is that? Sure is a handsome kid."

We assured Bush, once leading scorer in the United States as a back for Massachusetts Tech, that Buck Murphy is a perfect exponent of the old saying that "handsome is as handsome does."

Seeing Murphy brought up an old contention with us. And that is, it should be mandatory for pickers of so-called all-star elevens to name bona fide blocking backs.

Usually, four ball carriers are picked out. Bush cheerfully admitted he never would have been a leading scorer if it hadn't been for fine blocking.

Tech lost something when Murphy graduated. The boy came up through the ranks of the "Bees" and reached virtually unsung stardom his final year.

The Southeastern conference had no finer blocker, nor did it have a more efficient line backer-up.

But naturally in the all-star selections, Murphy's name did not appear. Everybody thought of ball carriers.

There is nothing fair nor representative about honorary teams which fail to include the men who make the business go. Hence, I think it would be a swell idea for all who pick teams to begin thinking right now about the men who pave the way.

It would be better still if there were no all-star teams at all. One cannot pick the best 11 or 22 men out of the Southeastern conference this season and not be unfair to a score or more of other boys who probably are just as good, or maybe better.

Ferdinand's Corner

Coach Allyn M'KEEN, of Mississippi State, admitting the Maroons might be stronger, added, "but the catch there is that all our opponents will be stronger, too."

McKeen said folks inclined to overlook Florida may be misled. The Maroons open with the 'Gators, but even so, McKeen pointed out, they lost only one man, Clark GOFF, fine tackle. All the coaches would like to have a Bob SON on their team. There are few ends who do everything well and also run with the power of a fullback. . . .

ound out the other day how Jim SENTER happened to see his good football shoes to Dummy LEBEY. . . . LeBeY, a freshman, complained to Kid CLAY about his shoes. . . .

Go steal you a pair," growled the Kid. . . . So Jim Senter as the victim. . . . Even as Senter raved and ranted in the ech dressing rooms back in 1916, LeBeY was lacing up the shoes with a glib look on his face. . . . Senter's middle name happens to be CORBETT because he was named after his great heavy-weight, who's a second cousin. . . . Memphis riters, who have charged umpires with everything but electricity this season, may now explain how it is that the Chicks, nishing third, are twenty-two and a half games off the pace? . . .

hey were nine games out of first place when the Vols clinched the S. L. pennant a week ago. . . . Umpires certainly had nothing to do with that. . . . You can say what you will about ething in football, but there are none better than Tech's awk CAVETTE, strong offensively and defensively, and ne of the nation's finer punters. . . .

Coaches of Tech and Georgia Get Together - - - for Charity

By JACK TROY. Coaches of Tech and Georgia get together only once a year, and that is not when the varsity football teams meet.

A common cause brings together the athletic representatives of the schools at Billy Wardlaw's shack. They meet with other friends of the Scottish Rite hospital to make plans for the annual Tech-Georgia freshman charity game.

The annual get-together was held last night and Spec Towns and Ears Whitworth easily out-did Ralph McGill at the festive board. McGill was back after a two-year absence.

Purpose of the annual event was explained by Tom Law, one of the three musketeers of the charity game. Billy Wardlaw, one of the other committeemen, presided, while Frank Spratlin, the other member, said a few words.

MORE THAN 17,000. More than 17,000 tickets were sold for last year's game—the game has grown each year—and a new record crowd of at least 20,000 is the goal for this season.

The annual game which is played for the benefit of the crippled children of the Scottish Rite hospital will be held on the most popular Thanksgiving Day.

Wally Butts, Georgia, and W. A. Alexander, Tech, gave their views on the game and Butts facetiously remarked that many crippled children will be able to walk around before Georgia recovers from the publicity given its freshman team of last year to boost the game.

GRACIOUS. "We are going to be gracious enough to send our freshman team over again to take a licking from Tech," Butts added.

Everett Strupper, former Tech great, told the assembled boosters that the Atlanta Touchdown Club would attempt to sell as many as 3,000 tickets. He was given a big hand.

Coaches present at the annual steak supper included Butts, Whitworth, J. V. Sikes, Elmer Lampe, Bill Hartman, Spec Towns, and Johnny Broadnax, of Georgia; and Alexander, Roy Mundorf, Roy McArthur, Bobby Dodd, of Tech.

Ward Favored In Amateur; 150 Open Meet

By BILL BONI. MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 8. (AP)—Marvin (Bud) Ward, defending titleholder in the National Amateur golf championship, tossed a bit of psychology as well as a lot of golf shots at his rivals today by shooting a 4-under-par 68 in his final practice round over the Winged Foot G. C. west course.

This round, on which he holed out every putt, not only was equal to the competitive course record but also served due and definite notice that he's ready to lay his title on the line against any man who tries to take it away from him.

COMES BACK IN 31. Ward, playing in a match with another golfer from Spokane—Bing Crosby—finally got rolling on Winged Foot's back nine. He went out in 37, one over regulation, but he started back 3-3-3-2, tacked on five straight 4's, for a 5-under-par 31 for the homeward journey.

Ward, teamed with Bob Coffey, of Fort Worth, Texas, against Crosby and Craig Wood, the Winged Foot pro, was an incidental attraction when the four-some started out. The crowd was there chiefly to see Crosby.

But by the time Bing had shot the first nine in 43 and started out not much better on the back nine, the spotlight shifted. Ward's score for those holes was only one shot over the regulation 30 which Bobby Jones had for his 69 that led the first round of the 1929 U. S. Open here, and which set what then was the course record.

Ward, who had been "fighting" a lot of his shots the first four days, was hitting them well today.

He had his outgoing 37 only because he three-putted two holes. On the back nine he hit everything and knocked in 10 and 20-foot putts for birdies on the 11th and 13th.

PLAY IN THREESOMES. Tomorrow's first 18-hole qualifying round will start at 7 a. m. (E. S. T.). From then until 12:57 p. m., the 150 entrants will be teeing off in threesomes. There will be another 18-hole round Tuesday, and the 64 low scorers then go into match play, starting Wednesday and Thursday with two 18-hole rounds each day. They shift to the 36-hole route for the semi-finals Friday and final Saturday.

Gene Dahlbender Is One Under Par. WINGED FOOT GOLF CLUB, MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Tommy Barnes and Gene Dahlbender Jr., of Atlanta, apparently were catching on to the tricks here today.

Barnes was three over par for 27 holes and Dahlbender had a one-under-par 71 with a putt and two conceded.

Gene Gaillard was having trouble with his driving and was "about six over par" for 27 holes. Crawford Rainwater, of Pensacola, who is registered from an Atlanta club, could not do any good.

If Dahlbender and Barnes can stick to the pace they set today, they will have no trouble landing one of the 64 places open in the 36-hole qualifying.

Those who shoot 155 or lower during the two rounds are expected to get in without any trouble, although it is possible that the field of approximately 150 may produce a lower mark.

Driver Tossed From Motorboat Wins 2d Place at Jackson Lake

By THAD HOLT. Of few things in sports may it be said: "It never happened before; it couldn't happen again."

But those 2,000 persons who lined the banks at Jackson Lake Inn for yesterday's outboard motorboat races are telling themselves they saw something which never again will take place on this planet.

George Guy, of Greenville, S. C., whirled his boat into the last turn of the final lap of the third race in Class C, with the powerful motor of his tiny craft wide open. The boat hit a wave and turned completely over, tossing Guy five or six feet into the air.

As the boat settled again, right side up, George fell back into the boat, in a correct position. Stunned and startled, but driving by instinct, the South Carolina boy pulled his machine back onto the course, raced his motor and finished second by an eyelash to National Champion Claude Smith, of Atlanta.

This third race was the thriller of the day, because on the same turn which capsized Guy's boat, Louis Trotzier's craft had turned over and put him out of the race.

Big winner of the day was Carl Flock, of Jackson Lake, who swept all three events in Class F with superb piloting around the turns. Flock won all the races he finished. Once his motor fouled out, and another time it also failed.

Claude Smith had a run of hard luck, but finished first, second and third in three races. His boat turned over in the opening event of Class F and his motor cracked a piston when he attempted to return to competition.

Josephine Tyson, who challenged the men in Class A, inspired one challenger for a match race, toying with Albert Johnson, of Atlanta, to win as she pleased.

CLASS C—FIRST RACE. Louis Trotzier, Atlanta; Claude Smith, Atlanta; George Guy, Greenville, S. C.; Johnny Mahaney, Savannah; Roy Reeves, Atlanta. Time, 1:56.

CLASS C—SECOND RACE. George Guy, Louis Trotzier, Claude Smith, Johnny Mahaney, Roy Reeves. Time, 1:55.

CLASS C—THIRD RACE. Claude Smith, George Guy, Roy Reeves; Tommy Gore, Miami; Guy Stancil, Tulsa. Time, 2:01.3-5.

CLASS A—SPECIAL CHALLENGE RACE. Josephine Tyson, Atlanta; Albert Johnson, Atlanta.

CLASS F—FIRST RACE. Carl Flock, Jackson Lake Inn; George Guy, Louis Trotzier, Johnny Mahaney. Time, 1:57.

CLASS F—SECOND RACE. Carl Flock, George Guy, A. L. McFarland, Birmingham; Roy Reeves, Louis Trotzier. Time, 1:56.1-2.

CLASS F—THIRD RACE. Carl Flock, George Guy, A. L. McFarland, Birmingham; Roy Reeves, Guy Stancil, Louis Trotzier. Time, 1:55.2.

OFFICIALS. D. B. Dukerhart, Atlanta, secretary and treasurer, Atlanta Motorboat Club and Dixie Motorboat Racing Association; Harry Glenn, Macon, AAA official; Harry Garraw, Atlanta, and Tom Etheridge, Atlanta.

ADAIR PARK WINS. Adair Park made seven hits good for six runs as it pounded out a 6-0 victory over Ben Hill Sunday afternoon at the championship of the Georgia-Walco Amateur Baseball League. The triumph was the second straight in the best of three series between the first and second half titlists.

Adair Park completely subdued the steady hurling of Jack Russell. The win gave Adair permanent possession of the handsome Walco League trophy and qualifies it for the Walther Association championship play-off which starts next Sunday.

Ben Hill 001 000 000—10 4 2. Adair Park 100 020 215—6 7 1. Chastain, Spear and Spear, Hill; Jack Russell and St. John.

Bright Gilstrap's Hills Park-Gordy Tire nine, winner of the Cherokee League diadem, downed Sylvan Hills, 3 to 2, in an 11-inning tussle at Oakland City. Joe Krieger, who relieved Wimpy Steele on the mound for the Tireman, whiffed 14 hits and led his team at bat with 8 runs.

Hills P-Gdy T. 000 001 000—10 2-3 12. Sylvan Hills 000 001 000—01-2 13 2. Steel, Crisler and Lanier; Higginbotham, Morris and Gladden.

Atlantic States, Walco Motor League champs, dropped their first game in 13 starts when Walton Mills downed them 9 to 2, at Monroe, Ga. Brown hit a home run for the winners. Atlantic States will open play in the association play-off next Sunday against either Barret Service or Smyrna.

Atlantic States 001 000 000—2 10 1. Walton Mills 202 020 215—13 11 1. R. Robinson, Holcomb and Reynolds; Butts and Kendall.

Roy Wood's up and coming Smyrna sluggers bowled over Johnson Freight Lines by a 12-to-3 count at Piedmont park in the Walther League Shaugnessy play-off. The win places Smyrna in the final round against Barret Service.

Smyrna 000 100 000—3 8 2. Johnson Freight 000 001 000—01-2 13 2. Saturday afternoon. Lines 020 000—3 8 2. Smyrna 0

Lookouts Take Fourth Place; Vols Win 100th, 101st Games

Jack Suydam's Home Run Puts Chattanooga in Playoff; Nashville Ends Season by Taking 12th, 13th Straights.

The Chattanooga Lookouts divided a twin bill with Memphis yesterday. Scores, 6 to 5 and 7 to 5, to end the Southern Association race in fourth place.

The Lookouts finished with a percentage of .480 with New Orleans, dropping its last two to league-leading Nashville, in fifth with .470.

Jack Suydam's homer with two aboard was the margin of victory for the Lookouts in the first. He was a free agent when picked up by the Lookouts two weeks ago.

The Nashville Vols, champions, closed the baseball season with a double victory over New Orleans, 6-7 and 9-4, to knock the Pelicans out of a chance to finish in the first division.

Larry Gilbert's league championship won their 100th and 101st games of the season by sweeping the twin bills. The victories ran their consecutive streak to 13.

The Vols will open the Shaughnessy playoffs Tuesday night in Nashville against Chattanooga, fourth-place finisher.

The Birmingham Barons and the Knoxville Smokies split a double-header at Knoxville to complete the season's play. The Smokies took the first, 9 to 6, while the Barons won the six-inning finale, 8 to 5.

Eddie Lukon and Marshall Mauldin, two Knoxville outfielders, were presented gifts by the fans between the games.

LUCKY FOR LOVE

Clara Goes to Hollywood; Marilyn And Bruce Go to Millville for Visit

By JANE DIXON.

SYNOPSIS. Clara Marsh, very conscious of her blond good looks, is voted the winner of a beauty contest, the prize offered by the Metropolitan Amusement Corporation of New York being a 10-day trip to Hollywood. But before Al Martino, Metropolis' sleek-haired representative, leaves Millville with Clara, he falls in love with her younger sister, Marilyn, who has just won the $1,000 prize for the best last line in Clara Super Soap Flakes' jingle contest and Marilyn has to discourage his attentions because of Clara's jealousy. In New York with Al, Clara drinks too much and she wires Marilyn that Clara refuses to return home. While he is on his way to the Blue Parrot night club, trying to locate Clara, she is there drinking champagne with Herman Hess, who says he will place her in the floor show. Al meets Marilyn, who has just been offered a job in Clara's New York offices, and she phones Clara's hotel, but Clara refuses to see her, accusing her of spying on her. After Marilyn goes to work in Clara's promotion department, Al takes her to the Blue Parrot. Clara tells Hess that Al insulted her and Hess strikes Al from behind. Bruce Gordon, of Clara, who happens to be there, sends Clara to Marilyn's apartment, where she takes Marilyn to her hotel, where the disheveled Clara is waiting. She insists upon meeting Bruce and phones him the next day, asking him to have dinner with her and Marilyn in her hotel apartment. Bruce calls Marilyn into his office, learns that she knows nothing of the invitation, and asks Marilyn to dine with him. But first he takes her to the Blue Parrot.

FINAL INSTALLMENT.

Kathie gave Marilyn one of her rare and impulsive "squirrel squeezes."

"Stick to that resolution, darling, and you'll be Mrs. Big Business in person," she rejoiced.

"Here's your hat. We'll have to race to beat Clara's time clock."

Another busy day at the office. A day tiring, but inspiring. Marilyn's slogans had really gone over. Now Marilyn and Kathie were back in the apartment again, dressing for dinner. Bruce Gordon had included Kathie in his invitation and was bringing Jim Martin for a foursome. The buzzer interrupted intensive primping. Marilyn opened the door to Al Martino.

"Greetings, Duchess!" Al clicked his heels and planted an exaggerated kiss on the back of Marilyn's hand. "How's the royal family?"

"Al, you rogue, why didn't you let us know you were coming? The fatted calf has been eating us out of house and home waiting for you. Now you're here, we'll kill the beast. When did you get in?"

"Today, noon. My favorite piece of the calf is the 'moo.' I got here as fast as my two legs and a chain of taxis would carry me. Sorry to get the bearer of tidings that may shock you, Duchess, but you've got to know something. So here goes. And look at it like this: the best news we've had since Millville came to the Big Town, Duchess, Blondie has taken a run-out powder on us. I got it from two of our Metropolis scouts who've been trailing her. She put on a big act in the Blue Parrot last night—a jealous fit over some past sweetie of Herman Hess who she claimed was trying to charm him away from her. They tell me it was the battle of the century. She panicked. She scared him so he offered her a thousand dollars cash and a ticket to any place she'd go, the farther the better. Blondie accepted the challenge, the thousand and the one-way ticket. She's on her way to Hollywood, the air way."

Marilyn was waiting in the apartment with Kathie and Al for Bruce Gordon. She was going to Millville to break the news of Clara's Hollywood flight to Mums and Dad. Clara had not communicated with them, although a week had passed since her sordid exit from the Blue Parrot. Marlyn knew, because last night she had called her home, ostensibly to say hello and to tell Bill that if he didn't stop having birthdays he'd be a grown man before she caught up with him again. Bill was all enthusiasm about his birthday "boodle." The once shabby gray home, now a brave white, seemed peaceful enough. There was none of the clamor and maternal lamentations, which would have been going on apace had word of Clara's latest folly reached Mums Marsh.

It was Bruce who advised Marilyn to go to her parents in person, to reassure and comfort them.

"Try to make them feel that nothing out of the ordinary has happened," he said, and suddenly drew the startled but yielding Lynn into his arms. "Poor little soldier," he said, tenderness husking his voice. "It's a tough assignment. Wish I could take it for you."

"Thanks, Bruce." A tweed shoulder, the right tweed shoulder, could be a beautiful haven. "Your wishing makes it easier." She had the grace to blush, seeing Kathie's amazed smile.

"Don't mind me," Kathie said. "I'm just the old family friend with bad eyesight. Bruce is right, Lynn. This is a job that needs a lot of doing. It's up to you."

"But Miss Cook! She won't like leaving without her permission, and I've been with Clara such a short time. You know how she is about discipline. I do want to justify her trust in me, to prove the few good things I've done for Clara weren't merely accidents."

Bruce stroked the bright brown head so close to him.

"I'll take care of Cookie," he promised. "She has a heart under that grim mask she uses to scare people."

"If you're sure it will be all right," wistfully. "I would like to see young Bill."

Bruce was decisive. "I'm sure. And now I'll go see about your ticket. Plane would be best. Give you more time at home and the sooner you get there the sooner you'll be back. Ever fly, Lynn?"

"No, but I've always wanted to."

"Then that's settled. I'll be back soon with the ticket and a hamper of food from the corner delicatessen. You girls pack while I'm gone, then we'll put on a picnic."

In the midst of the scurry for the right clothes and the right place to stow them in the bag, Al Martino arrived with a fresh packet of news. "Hermie Hess up and married the faded flower he tossed away a long time ago for fresher blooms. Clara must have plumb scared him into it. He was afraid she'd come back and start picking on him again. So he got himself a set of wedding bans to keep her off. What goes on here?"

Marilyn told him of her proposed visit to Millville and the reason for it.

"It's Bruce's suggestion," she said. "The name Bruce was music on her lips. 'He's arranging leave for me at the office and he's gone to get my ticket.'"

Kathleen was in the bedroom finishing the packing.

"It's that way between Bruce and you, isn't it Duchess?" Al's hands were on Marilyn's shoulder, his dark eyes earnestly seeking answer in hers.

"It's that way with me, Al," she said. Tears trembled on her lashes but her answer was straight and strong.

"I know. I've known since that first night, the night I took a black-out in the Blue Parrot. It's okay, Duchess. Gordon is a right hombre. Better guys they don't make. I'm for him, just like I'm for you. Me I'm a rolling stone. Stop me holling and likely as not I'd crack up into a lot of little no-count pebbles. You're a grand gal, honey-chile, and a grand pal. This is your Uncle Al broadcasting, and he's keeping right on with the old friendship program until you give him the signal to sign off."

"Then he'll be broadcasting through his long white beard," Marilyn said and found tears were happy ones.

"If only we could have stopped Clara," A shadow fell aslant the happiness. "She's so helpless—"

"Hey, Duchess, hush that helpless blurb, will you?" Al was his old sophisticated self again. "If Blondie is helpless, I'm a babe in arms. She inched herself out of Millville into Big Town, didn't she? She stayed here and wangled herself a good spot in the Blue Parrot, hottest spot in town, didn't she? Then what? She nicked a Good Time Charlie for a platterful of fancy jewelry, enough champagne to float the Queen Mary and a 'grand' in an airplane to Hollywood. She's out there now telling the lads on the lots how beautiful she is, and my money says she'll find a sap or two who'll believe her. Don't underestimate Blondie's ability to look out for herself. All that wildness is just a part of her technique. Underneath it she's figuring how soon she can take you and for how much. It's the take-all-give-nothing technique and Queenie from Millville is its classic performer."

The plane that was to carry Marilyn to Millville warmed up in the airport. Kathleen was there to see her off—by special permission of Cookie. Al, too, and Bruce. Such a serious Bruce, such a dear, tender, shining Bruce. A few minutes now, last farewells, and she would be winging into the sky, the city of dream that held so much of promise and of bitter disappointment below, behind her.

"Plane for Philadelphia, Pittsburgh—" That was her plane. "Bruce, my ticket! You have it?"

"I hope so. It should be in this envelope."

Suppose Bruce had mislaid the ticket? She peered inside the envelope. "Bruce," she said excitedly, "there are two tickets—exactly alike."

"You didn't think I would trust the girl I love to the mercy of a sky pilot on her first flight, did you?" Besides, there's a question I must ask your father, if you'll let me. I want his consent to taking you on as a permanent partner in Clara. Up the ramp, dear. They're ready to take off. 'Bye, Kathie. So long, Al."

Bruce followed Marilyn up the ramp and disappeared after her into the plane.

"Whedde you know!" Al Martino said, watching the flash of silver wings against blue sky. "The Prince of Good Fellows copped the Duchess. Come on, Kathie. Let's go some place and toss off a libation to Luck. The things Lady Luck can do for folks!"

THE END.

you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)
Your mind should be very alert this morning, enabling you to tackle any problem with new ideas. Between 10:30 a. m. and 1:40 p. m. you does not especially favor undertaking new financial obligations, or for dealings with legal affairs and educational ideas.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)
Previous to 11:33 a. m. changes, improvements and arguments may make this a difficult time. You are likely to feel too highly keyed, but if this feeling is kept under control, the entire day favors buying and selling, artistic ideas and social events.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)
Your mind should be very alert this morning, enabling you to tackle any problem with new ideas. Between 10:33 a. m. and 7:10 p. m. you may feel too prosperous, overbearing and the period does not especially favor undertaking new financial obligations.

June 21st and July 22d (CANCER)
Before 10:27 a. m. favors travel, dealings with brothers and sisters and for matters connected with health and food. After 10:27 a. m. be especially careful of accidents and sharp speech.

July 23d and August 22d (LEO)
During the entire day and until 3:30 p. m. you are likely to feel that you can conquer the world, achieve anything you desire as a part of it if you will apply yourself. An excellent day for new beginnings and for making new plans.

August 23d and September 22d (VIRGO)
The entire day favors willthe day operate after 10:30 a. m.

September 23d and October 22d (LIBRA)
Before 9:30 a. m. favors dealings with women, artistic affairs, social events. After 9:30 a. m. and 8 p. m. promises, obligations, financial dealings, are apt to be too extravagant. A good period to watch your step.

October 23d and November 21st (SCORPIO)
Before 11:35 a. m. favors obtaining favors from groups. After 11:35 a. m. routine. After 6:30 p. m. favors social interests and sports.

November 22d and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)
The hours previous to 11:45 a. m. favors political interests and other interests outside of the regular routine. After 11:45 a. m. does not favor making sudden changes in plans. After 6:45 p. m. favors dealings with those who are at the head of affairs.

December 22d and January 19th (CAPRICORN)
The entire previous to 12:48 noon favors general business, buying and selling. After 12:48 noon favors making plans rather than putting them into execution. After 8:45 p. m. favors dealings with superiors and asking favors.

January 20th and February 19th (AQUARIUS)
Previous to 10:06 a. m. favors real estate, conservative ideas and dealings with older people. After 10:06 a. m. favors low spirits and sarcastic speech. A good time to "watch your step."

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)
The entire day until 3:40 p. m. favors all interests within reason. After this period be especially careful to guard against a feel of antagonism.

McRAE'S LAST-MINUTE POLITICAL TRICK TO DECEIVE ORGANIZED LABOR EXPOSED!

H. E. Ivey, Chairman Georgia State Legislative Board, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, says attempt to deceive Labor through letter of Columbus, Ga., man is a political trick. Read his letter below.

GEORGIA STATE LEGISLATIVE BOARD OF THE BROTHERHOOD OF RAILROAD TRAINMEN

September 6th, 1940.

Hon. John A. Boykin,
Solicitor General,
317 Court House,
Atlanta, Georgia.

Dear Mr. Boykin:—

There has been a letter circularized to all members of organized labor in Fulton County by W. A. Heath, Chairman of the Co-Operative Labor Legislative Committee of Georgia with reference to Mr. McRae and his activities in 1937 in defeating the Anti-Sedition Bill.

Mr. Heath has no authority to speak for the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen in Fulton County, other than being State Representative to attend the General Assembly. He has written a number of letters in the interest of Mr. McRae's candidacy for Solicitor General, and I do not believe that this meets with the approval of the members in Fulton County, inasmuch as he is a resident of Muscogee County.

Mr. Heath was cautioned some few days ago relative to meddling in Fulton County politics. His circular letter to all members in Fulton County, I think is very unfair and nothing more than a political trick, and I am unable to understand why he has done this.

I have known you, Mr. Boykin, for the past twenty years and you may quote me as saying that during this entire time I have never known you to do one thing against the interest of organized labor. I have always considered you to be a fair, honest, conscientious and impartial Solicitor General, and consider you as my personal friend.

This is done to repudiate the circular letter, above referred to.

With kind regards and best wishes, I am,

Most sincerely,

H. E. Ivey

DEWEY L. JOHNSON Says:

In a release to the Atlanta newspapers today, Dewey L. Johnson, President of the Georgia Federation of Labor, says: When I became president of the Georgia Federation of Labor last May, and after conferring with the Executive Board of the Georgia Federation, I stated through the public press that the Georgia Federation of Labor would not endorse any candidate for public office in the State of Georgia.

About three years ago former President Gramling, of the Georgia Federation of Labor, affiliated with the Co-operative Legislative Committee of the Railroad Transportation Brotherhood. However, when this committee met in Atlanta about a month ago for the purpose of endorsing candidates in statewide races, I appeared before the committee and informed them that the Georgia Federation of Labor would have no part in such endorsements. A letter was sent out by the committee at that time stating clearly that the Georgia Federation of Labor had no part in such endorsements.

However, within the past few days a letter has been circulated in Fulton County signed by the Chairman of the Co-operative Committee, who resides in Columbus, Georgia, urging laboring people to vote for a certain candidate for the office of Solicitor-General of Fulton County. So far as I know no meeting has been held by the committee for the purpose of endorsing candidates for office in Fulton County, and had there been a meeting, the Georgia Federation of Labor would have taken the same position they took in endorsing candidates—that we do not participate in the activities of the committee endorsing candidates for public office, so that the position of the Georgia Federation of Labor will be clear and that the organized workers will understand they records of the candidates for office and choose the ones they feel best fitted for the position.
